GLENN'S

SULPHUR SOAP

CAUTION!—See that you get the above bearing both the name and design on the packet which encloses each cake, as this famous remedy has been counterfeited.

C. N. CRITTENTON, Sole Prop., N.Y.

THE LEADING EXTERNAL SPECIFIC FOR

SKIN DISEASES

A Beautifier of the Complexion.

It renders the Cuticle Healthful, Clear, and Smooth, and is the best possible substitute for expensive Sulphur Baths. It will heal Ulcers and Sores.

Persons employing it have no need to resort to Sulphur Springs for bathing purposes.

It is a desirable DISINFECTANT of CLOTHING or BED LINEN, and a capital remedy and preventive of Obnoxious or Contagious Diseases. It is also valuable as an injection.

As an adjunct of the TOILET, it is far more desirable than any cosmetics.

TAN, FRECKLES, PIMPLES, and BLOTCHES yield to its influence; and it is the very best soap to shave with, leaving the skin smooth. It also ERADICATES DANDRUFF. The article is endorsed by the Medical fraternity.

STRIKING MOULDERS.

Employes of Railroad Shops in Louisville Quit Work.

LOUISVILLE, KY., August 5.—Yesterday a committee from the Moulders' Union waited on President Sprague, of the Ohio Falls Car Company at Jeffersonville, and demanded an increase of twenty-five cents per day in wages. At present the moulders are being paid $2 25, and they claim that other manufacturers in Indiana are paying $2 50. It is understood the reply of Sprague was unsatisfactory and to-day the men, after cast is made, will quit work. It was reported that the strike of moulders in the Louisville and Nashville Railway shops had something to do with the proposed strike on the other side of the river, but how true this is can not be ascertained, as the men positively refuse to give any information whatever in relation to the matter. It is known, however, that a couple of Louisville strikers obtained employment in the Ohio Falls Car Works, and Sprague, having been furnished with a black list on which the names appeared, refused to keep them in the employ of his works. There are nearly 1,200 employed in the car works, and as each department is dependent upon the other it is probable that if the moulders strike the whole establishment will close. Striking moulders from the Louisville and Nashville Railroad shops of this city are expected to have their demands acceded to and return to work, but they were disappointed and are still out. The connection with the car works strike complicates the situation and will probably cause a serious strike.

Grierson's Movements.

CHICAGO, August 5.—Under date of August 3, via Eagle Springs, Lieut.-Gen. Sheridan learns from Col. Grierson that the Mexican troops have started on their return to Chihuahua. Victoria with about 150 warriors is again across the river, while the troops are now moving rapidly to get in his front. The Indians are evidently starting for Guadaloupe or Sacramento.

An Accident that Caused the Death of Three Men.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MOBERLY, Mo., August 5.—The two brothers, Thos. and Frank Benville, who were injured at Clark's Switch Wednesday morning, in the railroad accident, died here last night after great suffering. This accident has resulted in the death of three men and a total wreck of an engine and two cars.

Ohio Democrats.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, August 5.—Ben Butterworth was renominated for Congress by the Republicans of the First Ohio District, this morning, and Tom Young in the Second. Ben Eggleson and Josiah Kirby were selected as electors in the First and Second Districts. The county convention is now in session.

Meeting of the Georgia Democratic Convention.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, August 5.—A Times-Star special says: The Georgia convention has just assembled amid great excitement and adopted rules for balloting. A candidate is not to be voted for unless nominated by a delegate, and a two-third vote is required for a choice.

The Catholic Temperance Convention.

SCRANTON, PA., August 5.—The Catholic Temperance Convention of the United States adopted a recommendation for an emigration committee to establish agents in all sea ports to aid emigrants with money and transportation. Father Bouillett, of the Indian Commission started by Mrs. Gen. Sherman, made an address asking co-operation in forwarding temperance, education, industry and Catholicity among the Indians. The convention and local societies had a parade to-day.

Alleged Kentucky Lawlessness.

CINCINNATI, August 5.—A Flemingsburg, Kentucky, special this morning reports the shooting fatally of Perry Jefferson at May's Lick, on the 3d of August, by two negroes, and the subsequent lynching of the negroes. No further particulars. The same special notes that an organized band of regulators in the northern part of Fleming county have given Charles Marshall, defeated candidate for State Senator, twenty days to leave the county. The same order has been given another man. Both ostracised gentlemen are wealthy. The citizens are excited.

Chicago Shoemakers on a Strike.

CHICAGO, August 5.—About 500 men employed in shoe manufacturing in this city went on a strike yesterday. The strike is caused by low wages paid to bottomers, siders and crimpers. The employers say that it is wholly a question of dollars and cents with them, that they would pay better wages if they could, but that convict labor has injured the market to the detriment of mechanic and manufacturer. Their stability, they say, depends on holding out.

A Steamship on Fire.

RIMONSKI, QUEBEC, August 5.—The steamship Miramichie, from Quebec for Gulf ports with one hundred and ten passengers, took fire this morning while proceeding down the river. The passengers at first were greatly alarmed, but Captain Davis soon calmed their fears. The fire was extinguished before much damage was done to the cargo. The vessel sustained no damage and proceeded on her voyage.

Thrown from the Track by a Bull.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., August 5.—The engine and baggage car of the through passenger train last evening on the Housatonic road were thrown from the track by a bull, and badly wrecked. The engineer, Geo. Bowers, and the express messenger, Abe Tucker, were severely injured. Ira Horseford, fireman, slightly injured; passengers badly shaken up.

A Brute Arrested.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CINCINNATI, August 5.—Williams, the man who committed rape on the six-year-old daughter of George Huber in Covington on Friday, was arrested this morning and committed without bail.

The Ox Dodgers Mad.

NEW YORK, August 5.—The manager of the ox-dodging Spanish troupe says he will sue the Bergh Society to enjoin it from interfering with the performances and also for $100,000 damages.

Chicago to Have an Elevated Railway.

CHICAGO, August 5.—The Secretary of State has licensed the Metropolitan Elevated Railway Company, of Chicago. It has a capital stock of $5,000,000.

EVENTS IN EUROPE.

The Russian Government Building War-Ships.

English Legislation on the Importation of American Cattle.

Gladstone's Health Improving—The German Reichstag—Foreign Notes.

England.

LONDON, August 5.—Arthur Arnold, Liberal, will, in the House of Commons to-morrow, move the following resolution: "That in the opinion of the House the compulsory slaughter at ports of landing of fat stock from the United States restricts the supply and increases the cost of food, and, having regard to freedom from disease of cattle-producing States in America, the House deems it desirable that the Government should consider the restrictions with a view to their modification or their removal." The resolution in the first part closely follows that proposed by W. E. Forster in '78, for which resolution twenty-four members of the present government voted in the minority. Official correspondence with the United States on the subject will be distributed in the House before discussion of the resolution.

BULLION

Bullion in the Bank of England decreased £391,000 the past week. Proportion of Bank of England reserve to liabilities 50 15-16 per cent.

ELECTION TO-MORROW.

LIVERPOOL, August 5.—The election for Member of Parliament caused by Lord Ramsay's accession to the peer takes place here to-morrow. Plimsoll is the Liberal and Lord Claude Hamilton the Conservative candidate. The Executive Committee of the Home Rule Confederation recommends that Irishmen abstain from voting, because Plimsoll declined to take the Home Rule pledge.

GLADSTONE.

Gladstone passed an excellent night and is making satisfactory though slow progress.

SPECIE.

Specie in the Bank of France decreased 1,134,000f. the past week.

India.

LONDON, August 5.—An official dispatch from Quettah dated the 4th says the natives report Ayoob Khan was at Sanghar the 1st instant, appearing uncertain whether to advance or not; also that Ayoob entertained no hope of successfully attacking Candahor. Her Majesty's ship Danoe shelled two rebellious Samoan villages and the natives threatened to massacre all the white inhabitants. A later telegram at the Foreign Office states that the rebels surrendered to the proper authorities, and quiet has been restored.

Germany.

LONDON, August 5.—A Berlin dispatch to the Times says "Herr Hassellmann, the notorious Socialist Deputy, excluded from the Social Democratic party for expressing regret in the German Reichstag in Germany that the Socialists did not identify themselves with the Nihilists, has hastily embarked for America, which inclines some journals to describe his departure as the precipitate flight of a swindling and unprincipled depredator and sham friend of the workingman.

Russia.

LONDON, August 5.—The Standard St. Petersburg correspondent telegraphs that the Russian Government has decided to construct ten clippers, five of which will be built under contract with Mr. Barker, American, in the United States, and the remaining five in England and Germany.

Spain.

LONDON, August 5.—A Madrid dispatch says the Royal Court have returned from La Grange. The birth of an heir to the throne is expected about the end of August.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

A fire at Jaurrietta, Province Navarre, destroyed eighty of the 186 houses which the village contained; several persons injured.

CHICAGO MURDER.

The Killing of McMahon and Sullivan—The Child Murder.

CHICAGO, August 5.—Although a dozen or fifteen hard characters are under arrest for the murder of McMahon, who was shot dead in his bed by burglars, Monday last, the police have abandoned the theories previously formed and now acknowledge that they have not yet secured the perpetrators of the crime. The unfortunate victim was buried this morning. The funeral was largely attended by the Ancient Order of Hibernians and the Hibernian Rifles, and many delegations from the stock yards, where McMahon was very popular.

A Little Chicago Girl Killed by Her Father and Mother.

CHICAGO, August 5.—The post-mortem examination on the body of little Jennie Mansfield, whose death is supposed to have been caused by a kick from her father, was begun this morning. The parents are still confined at the Madison Street Station. Some four or five witnesses were found by the police this morning, and if what they say is the truth, there can be but little doubt that the horrible crime of child-murder was committed.

THE CORONER'S VERDICT.

The Coroner's inquest on the body of little Jennie Mansfield, alleged to have been kicked to death by her parents, establishes the fact that the girl died of typhoid pneumonia. The parents were censured in the verdict for neglect and general cruel treatment.

The Sullivan Murder.

CHICAGO, August 5.—The body of the man murdered by the Sullivans in the saloon fight yesterday has been identified as that of Edward Bourgon, a sailor, who came here from Montreal.

THE DOOMED BALBO.

Preparations for the Execution of the Italian Murderer.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, August 5.—The Warden of the Tombs has given orders to the prison officials that no visitors be allowed in the prison. This is done to secure Balbo necessary quiet and rest and to protect him from idle curiosity-seekers. The prison gates have been thronged all the morning with anxious applicants for passes to the prison, but the warden refuses all. Preparations for the last act were commenced shortly before noon. The gallows to be used is the same from which Cox was hanged, and it will be erected on the same spot in front of the Women's Prison. The Sheriff has made arrangements that such as were witnessed at Cox's death shall disgrace the execution of Balbo. Counselor Kirtzing thought this morning that he would make another effort in Balbo's behalf, and though he has little confidence as to the result, he will probably telegraph Cornell this afternoon. A rumor is in circulation that President Hayes has written to Governor Cornell suggesting a reprieve or a commutation of sentence. This rumor cannot be traced to any reliable source, but it was referred to by ex-Sheriff O'Brien at the Tombs.

NO SCENES.

VISITORS.

NEW YORK, August 5.—In the afternoon the restrictions imposed as to the admission of visitors to the lower corridor of the Tombs, where Balbo's cell is situated, were temporarily removed and a large number of persons, some of whom were priests, were permitted to pass the iron wicket. Balbo was seen standing in the midst of the group. His sallow face has grown pale and there is an occasional nervous twitching around his mouth and eyes. The gallows will be erected to-day. One entrance to the prison was crowded with well-dressed and respectable-looking young women, who vainly sought permission to enter.

AN IMPORTANT OPINION.

That of Chief Justice Waite in the South Carolina Railroad Case.

CHARLESTON, S. C., August 5.—The opinion of Chief Justice Waite and Judge Bond in the case of Calvin Claflin and others against the South Carolina Railroad Company was filed in the United States Circuit Court to-day. The opinion holds that all hypothecated bonds are good; that non-mortgage bonds are not entitled to the benefit lien of a second mortgage and unsecured claim against the company; that the first mortgage coupons held by the syndicate were purchased by them not redeemed, and are entitled to the benefits of the mortgage; that the injunction previously granted shall continue in force until further testimony as to the amounts of several liens of the road can be taken. In conclusion the court says:

"The complainants are entitled to the sale of mortgaged property subject to ascertained prior incumbrances; but until such decree is prepared the injunctions heretofore existing shall remain in force. The opinion therefore sustains the defendants in the cause upon the points named, excepting as to granting, sale and status of non-mortgage bonds, as unsecured debts, in which two points the views of plaintiffs prevail."

Still Searching for the Buried Bodies.

NEW YORK, August 5.—Leaks in the excavation of the Hudson River tunnel at Jersey City have just been discovered. It has been pouring in a volume of water at the rate of 1,200 gallons a minute and the pumps could not overcome it. The prospect now of reaching the buried bodies is better than ever.

Saratoga Races.

SARATOGA, N. Y., August 5.—The track is muddy and heavy. Jewelry won the three-quarter mile dash; Flora (favorite) second; Mabel third. Time—1:20.

The second race, mile and a quarter, was won by Col. Sprague; Juniata (favorite) second; Scotia third. Time—2:13.

Luke Blackburn, a great favorite, won the mile and a half race; Ferncliffe second; Oden third. Time—2:41.

Waller won the steeple-chase over the usual course, Rose second, Derby third; time 3:14.

New Jersey Republicans.

NEW YORK, August 5.—The Post special says: F. A. Potts has formally consented to accept the Republican nomination for Governor of New Jersey. It is not probable there will be an opposition to him in the convention.

West Virginia Democrats.

WHEELING, W. VA., August 5.—The Democratic Convention of the Third District of West Virginia, at Hinton Court-house, Sommers county, W. Va., yesterday renominated Hon. John Kenna for Congress.

The Dental Association.

BOSTON, August 5.—At the session of the American Dental Association to-day several essays were read, and Dr. Talbot, of Chicago, presented the association with a new instrument for excavating cavities.

The Rochester Races.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., August 5.—In the exhibition races here Thursday next Maud S. is to beat St. Julien's record of 2:12 3-4 and St. Julien is to beat the best time ever made by a trotter or pacer.

Crump Surrenders.

MOBERLY, August 5.—Ben Crump, who killed Corlew, the rapist, has given himself up, and is under $10,000 bail to answer for it.

THE FAMISHING DOCTOR.

The Champion Starver Begins His Thirty-Ninth Day.

Physicians Confident of His Success—Another Offer of Marriage.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, August 5.—As Dr. Tanner nears the end of his fast, the indications of exhaustion appear more distinct, and the number of vomiting turns are more frequent and violent. "Yesterday," said one of the watching doctors, "I thought he was going to die. He had a severe fit of vomiting, and when he was through his head hung over the side of the bed, and he was too weak to raise it. I lifted him into a comfortable position and prepared my stimulants to be ready for the expected emergency."

THE CATS.

The warfare on cats in the rear of Clarendon Hall has progressed vigorously to the great satisfaction of the faster. A bomb was exploded in the midst of a party of cats last night and did horrible execution, also causing silence for the rest of the night, such as Dr. Tanner has seldom enjoyed before during his fast. An attending doctor stated he had not derived the benefits by watching Tanner he had anticipated. He attributed this to mismanagement. The hall presents a most slovenly appearance. In the gallery everything is upside down. The floor and tables are strewn with soda water bottles, checker-boards, old letters, electrical appuratus, bon bons, phials, physicians' report books, withered bouquets and other miscellaneous litter. Right over stands a high pile of chairs, and if a disturbance was created these might fall on his head and end the fast at once. All physicians express confidence in the successful accomplishment of the fast.

TANNER'S CONDITION.

NEW YORK, August 5.—The most noticeable trait in Dr. Tanner's condition to-day is his extreme irritability. All conversation with visitors is prohibited, and the latter are requested to make as little noise as possible. He complains of weakness at intervals, but is buoyed up by a knowledge that the task is nearly completed. During the early morning he suffered frequently from nausea and was very restless. He slept from midnight until 2 a. m., when he had a fit of severe retching, followed by the ejection of a small quantity of mucus. He dozed off again, but was awakened shortly by the odor of a cigarette, which caused nausea, the stomach requiring vigorous rubbing by Dr. Gunn to ease it. He rested quietly until 5:40, when he again awoke,

FEELING MUCH BETTER.

After sleeping two hours quietly he drank three ounces of spring water, but immediately after vomited a portion tinged with mucus. Vigorous rubbing by a physician brightened him up and accelerated the action of the heart. At 10 o'clock he was given a mustard foot bath and his body sponged with mustard water rubbed in until thoroughly dry. At noon the thirty-eighth day ended. A few minutes later he had another attack of nausea and vomiting. About 1 he was resting quietly. In the morning's mail the Doctor received a marriage proposal from a widow of Hamilton, N. Y., who signed herself Mrs. Carrie E. Huntington, and enclosed a picture.

TALMAGE'S PLANS.

Col. Flad Says They are Exact Copies of Old Designs Furnished to the City.

There was great mirth in the office of Col. Flad this morning. The usually quiet clerks were subject to sudden fits of laughter, and the august president of the board would occasionally relieve himself with a "guffaw."

On being asked the cause of his very good humor, Mr. Flad said, "Mr. Talmage has all along been finding fault with my plans as being too dear and too ornamental. He has said that he would show us how to build bridges and that he was working all night on his plans, and toat they would discount any the Board of Public Improvements ever saw. When he showed these wonderful monuments at the committee meeting yesterday, they looked unaccountably familar to me. When the specifications were read. I could not help admitting that they were both thorough and good, though they still sounded very familiar to me. The matter bothered me all night; this morning early I settled the whole thing, the plans and specifications of which Mr. Talmage has boasted so much and which he handed in yesterday, are an exact copy, line for line, and word for word, of the plans furnished by the firm of Flad & Pfeiffer for the Twelfth and Fourteenth street bridges. They were submitted in February 1875, when Moulton was City Engineer, and were approved by the City Council. The only change is that Mr. Talmage makes his bridge two feet wider. There are features about those plans that are not in any other bridges ever designed, so that Mr. Talmage could not have done this thing by accident." Col. Flad was very jolly over the discovery, but said he did not know how to explain that Mr. Talmage, after talking so confidently, should so lay himself open to attack. "It must be," said the Colonel, "that Mr. Talmage, who knows nothing at all about the matter, has been fooled by the man who prepared the designs."

An Actress' Rings.

Miss Ida Alb, the Græco-Roman wrestler who has been performing with her sister, Mlle. Marcia, at the Theatre Comique and Esher's, appeared at the Four Courts this afternoon and told Capt. Lee she had been robbed. She alleged that she found Frankie McClellan in her room at 1004 Pine street this morning, and that shortly afterward she discovered that two gold rings, each containing one large and six small diamonds, were missing. She said they were valued, the one at $75 and the other at $65. She described Frankie as being about fourteen years old, four feet high, stout and good-looking, save for a small sore under her nose, and as wearing a gray linen duster and a white straw hat trimmed with red roses. Frankie was employed at the Theater Comique some time ago and left this city in company with the May Fisk blondes. She suffered in the general break-up of that troupe and remained some time in Kansas City, whence she returned last evening. Miss Alb invoked the aid of the detectives and, guarded by two shining lights of that profession, she sallied forth on the search for the errant blonde.

Born in an Ambulance.

A young woman about twenty-three years of age came running into the Dispensary at 9 last evening. She was in the utmost trepidation, and it was easily perceived that she was in extreme necessity. Dr. Carson, seeing at once what was her trouble, had her placed in the ambulance, but before it had gone many squares she gave birth to a male child. The Doctor fortunately had accompanied the vehicle, and he attended to her wants as well as the circumstances would permit. Mother and child were sent to the Female Hospital, and are doing well.

Green as Grass.

As Officer Marsh was going off duty this morning at the Union Depot, he noticed a couple, apparently very verdant, who would prove a shining mark for sharpers. He approached them and soon discovered what they were after, he led them to Justice M. J. Mullery's office, where Miss Addie L. Dawdy was soon made Mrs. Louis Henry Parrish. They hail from Shelbyville, Ill., and from their actions were put down as a runaway couple by those who knew. They departed in search of lodgings under Officer Marsh's wing.

Vague Moonshine.

The Marshal's office is during the vacation, probably the quietest place in the city of St. Louis. Nothing agitates the even flow of the office life now but the dim expectation of some moonshiners in from Southeast Missouri. Nobody seems to know who they are, or what they have done, or who is going to bring them in, or anything else: but the impression is, in a general way, that something will occur there soon in this direction.

The Three Justices.

The case of Goldberg vs. Wilhelm caused a centralization of legal talent in Justice P. J. Taaffe's office this morning. The plaintiff was represented by ex-Justice Wm. Keating and the defendant by ex-Justice Wm. Andre. A heated debate, which caused a perceptible rise in the thermometer, took place. The day was won by the defendant, the Justice deciding that plaintiff, who sued for rent in advance, had not made out his case.

Fire at Rock Springs.

The alarm at 12 o'clock to-day called the engines out on Manchester Road. Mr. Jas. Moonan's two-story residence No. 3611 Manchester Road, was discovered to be in flames. Engines 10 and 17 responded promptly and the fire was rapidly extinguished, not before much damage was done. The roof and upper stories were much damaged. Loss $1,000; covered by a policy for $3,000 in the State Mutual.

Suit Against a Bank.

Francis Costello has brought suit before Justice Taaffe against the Butchers' and Drovers' Bank for $170 there deposited by him. The case came up at two o'clock and is still in progress. G. M. Stewart represents the plaintiff, John M. Dickinson the Butchers' and Drovers'.

A Man Missing.

Fred. Weislagel, aged thirty-six, dark-complected, with black hair and eyes and a black beard, left his home, 1119 Allen avenue, a few days ago and has not been seen since. He wore a black alpaca coat and vest and had about $100 in his possession.

Dislocated Hip.

Robert Carson, an old man, fell from a lumber pile on the levee at the foot of Poplar street last night and sustained serious hip injuries. He was sent to the Dispensary by Officer P. Dunn and afterwards removed to the City Hospital.

A Buggy Wrecked.

Dr. Moore, of Ninth and Olive streets, was whisked along the streets at a lightning-like rate yesterday. He finally brought up at Bernard street and Summit avenue, where he gazed with sorrow at the wreck of his new buggy.

City Treasury Receipts.

The Missouri Pacific paid in to-day $12,000 interest on loan. M. A. Rosenblatt, City Collector, handed in $11,100. Recorder Irwin's fees amounted to $45 15 and Superintendent Shaeffer of House of Refuge paid in $72.

THE PATH ACROSS THE FIELDS.

How sharp the spires upon the hill!
  They rise against the sunset sky
Like masts of ships, that sailing past
  A sea of flame, now anchored lie.

But lo! a pilgrim in the path,
  That dimly traced around the ground,
Through orchard, meadow, pastures bare,
  Winds upwards to the hilltop town.

Ah, what is life save just a path,
  A hasty walk for only one,
And childhood, manhood, age, are fields
  Between us and the setting sun.

That toiling traveler gains the hill,
  He weary walks the village through;
And now he seems amid the clouds,
  As if to heaven an angel flew!

Oh bless the life that holy here
  Beyond the ridge of life has passed,
A shaded footpath now, but merged
  In everlasting life at last.

—[REV. EDWARD A. RAND.

A BONAPARTE'S HOME.

The Retreat of Napoleon's Brother Near Bordentown, N. J.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

The advent of the eldest brother of the grea Napoleon to this country in 1816 is a matter of history. The star of Napoleon had gone down forever. Everything had been staked at Waterloo and lost. Joseph at that time was in Paris with the Empress, where he had been doing his best to promote the success of Napoleon. When the news of the disaster came, knowing that all chances were lost, Joseph began hurried preparations for the escape of himself and his brother to America. No time was to be lost. In a few hours the English with their allies would swarm in the city of Paris. The passports were made out, the vessel was selected, and the disguises were complete. The craft they were to sail in was a small, common-looking brig, the Commerce, of two hundred tons, loaded with Bordeaux wines for the New York market. Joseph's arrangements had been made unknown to every living soul except his devoted secretary, Louis Mailliard, who had been with him through all his vicissitudes while King of Naples and of Spain. Joseph's dearest wish was to have his brother Napoleon escape with him, and the little time he had for making his arrangements was divided between making the necessary preparations and expostulations and protestations and pleadings and entreaties to Napoleon to accompany him. A few hours before embarking Joseph sent his secretary, Mailliard, to Napoleon with a letter urging Napoleon to exchange places and make his escape from France in Joseph's vessel. But Napoleon replied: "Tell my brother I have well considered his offer, and that I cannot accept it. It would seem like flying away from danger. Besides, I could not leave behind me so many brave officers who have sacrificed everything for me. Tell my brother that I hope he will escape the cruisers of England and arrive safely."

Upon receiving this answer Joseph immediately sailed for America. The vessel was commanded by a Swede, Messervey by name, and the identity of his passengers was kept a secret. This, as it afterward appeared, was very wise. The brig was boarded three times by English frigates on the lookout for Napoleon on the high seas, but the passports and papers had been so carefully prepared under fictitious names that the refugees were not discovered.

Arrived in New York Joseph Bonaparte found all the hotels thronged with guests. The proprietor of the City Hotel, Mr. Jennings, told him that he had given his last suite of rooms to Henry Clay, who had just returned from his mission to negotiate the Treaty of Ghent. The circumstances coming to Mr. Clay's ears, he at once went to Joseph Bonaparte, introduced him to his apartments, after which they entered the room where dinner for the American statesman's party had been provided.

"And here," said Mr. Clay, "is a dinner for yourself and suite." The courtesy was accepted and the acquaintance between the two was continued from that time forward.

How Joseph Bonaparte came to select Bordentown as his place of residence is not known. There are many theories. It is said after his arrival here he traveled over the eastern part of the country looking for a place that suited him, in which tour he took in the Hudson and Schuylkill. The influence that turned the scale in favor of Bordentown is ascribed by some to a little incident connected with the great Napoleon, the authority for which is said to be Mailliard, the ex-King's secretary. Some time before the abdication of Napoleon, it is related, he was once speaking upon the probability of his ever having to flee from France, in which event, it appears, he had a notion of finding his refuge in America. Taking out a map of this country he unrolled it in the presence of his officers, and, placing his finger upon a spot in New Jersey, is represented to have said: "If I am ever forced to fly to America I shall settle somewhere between Philadelphia and New York, where I can receive the earliest intelligence from France by ships arriving at either port." It is said this idea governed his brother in his location.

Joseph Bonaparte was known in this country as the Count de Survelliers, taking his title from the name of one of his estates in France. It was in 1816 that he bought the property about Bordentown, one tract of which is known as Bonaparte Park. Evidently he came to this country with full pockets. It is within the memory of living witnesses how he made the money fly during his fifteen or sixteen years' residence at Bordentown—the elegance of his surroundings, the abundance of costly wines, the splendor of the banquets he was constantly giving to distinguished personages, his fine equipages, his magnificent collection of costly pictures and statuary, the extensive improvements he made to his lands and the large retinue of servants he always kept on hand in addition to the extensive force of laborers he had constantly employed on his grounds.

The park alone contained about 1,000 acres, and, in addition to this, he had ten farms, all in the immediate neighborhood of Bordentown. He had a number of fine yachts and pleasure boats that always lay at anchor out on the Delaware, immediately underneath the bluff that marks the terminus of the north side of the park. Not content with his nearness to the river he had a large and beautiful lake made in the lower end of his park, where in summer there was always on hand a number of small pleasure boats. In winter, when the lake would freeze over, he would throw his gates open and invite the young folks of Bordentown to come in and skate. When the sport would be at its height Joseph and his family would come down and amuse themselves by looking on. A favorite pastime of the ex-King on these occasions would be to roll oranges and coins down on the ice and watch the skaters scamper for them. For a long time the only immediate member of Joseph Bonaparte's family who was with him in his exile was his daughter, Princess Zenaide, who married her cousin, Charles Bonaparte, a son of Lucien. A residence for this daughter and her husband was built on the lower end of the park, some hundred rods from the residence of Joseph himself. It is still standing as it was left by them. After several years Joseph's second daughter joined her father and sister in America. His wife, Queen Julia, never did, however. Several times she undertook to set out to join him from Italy, where she was living, but ill health invariably prevented, the physicians counseling her against it. Joseph was a most popular man with people of all classes. In the winter his house was always thronged with guests. Among these were many of the most prominent men in the country of that day. Clay, Webster, Calhoun, Benton and many other shining lights in the political firmament were entertained by the ex-King at his Bordentown home at different times. Henry Clay left a cane there which is in possession of one of the old inhabitants of Bordentown to this day. Nor was it only among the statesmen and wise men of the country Joseph Bonaparte found his companions. He was very intimate with many of the old families up in New Jersey, as well as with Stephen Girard and all the people of prominence in Philadelphia. Before taking possession of his Bordentown property Joseph had resided in Philadelphia in a house on the west side of Ninth street, between Spruce and Locust. Afterward, with his daughter and her husband, he occupied one of Stephen Girard's houses, on the site of which the Bingham House now stands. It was here the Princess Zenaide's first child was born. An amusing incident is related of Joseph and Stephen Girard. Joseph expressed a desire to purchase the ground between Eleventh and Twelfth, and Chestnut and Market streets, owned by Stephen Girard and as yet unoccupied by buildings. At a dinner given by Girard to the ex-King one day Joseph broached the subject and offered to pay Girard any fair price he would ask. "What will you give?" said Girard. "I'll tell you," said Joseph; "I will cover the block from Eleventh to Twelfth, and from Chestnut to Market streets, with silver half dollars!" "Yes, Mons. Le Count," said Girard, after a moment's reflection, "if you will stand them up edgeways." The bargain was not closed.

THE PARK AS IT IS.

Joseph's death in Italy, surrounded by his family, is a matter of history. Go to Bonaparte Park now and you find all the evidences of its former splendor. Here are the crumbling brick walls of the underground passages. As to what these passages were for there has been some diversity of opinion. Those most in a position to know, however, will tell you that they were constructed by Joseph as so many avenues of escape in case of attempted assassination. Of this he was more fearful than many of his chroniclers have dared to tell. His bed chamber was entered by a door moved by a secret spring. Outside this door, it is said, a watchman was always stationed during the night. The underground passages ran from Joseph's house to the residence of his daughter and also to the servants' quarters. In addition to these there was a long one running from the daughter's house to the bluff overlooking the river, the entrance to which may be still seen, though the passage itself has fallen in in many places and filled up. There is no account of any attempts to explore these passages. The daughter's house is now unoccupied and closed. The ex-King's house has been razed to the ground and in its stead a handsome English villa stands, the builder of which was the subsequent owner of the park, Thomas Beckett, an Englishman. It is said that Joseph always had a fleet of yachts lying out in the Delaware, available for him in case of surprise by the dreaded assassins, whom he always fancied himself in danger of. The long underground passage leading to the river bluff is supposed to have been constructed by him as a means of reaching his boats in case of surprise. The place is full of interesting reminders of the ex-King's residence there. The forest which skirts the edge of the park has been planted with an eye to artistic effect and beauty. As a place of residence no more beautiful spot could be found. Six miles away the church spires of Trenton are seen rising beyond the trees. Philadelphia is twenty-eight miles away. The Amboy division of the Pennsylvania Railroad runs directly past the park, the station of which is a few rods from it. The encampment of the New Jersey troops will no doubt attract a great throng of visitors there, who will find in the park much material for pleasant and interesting contemplation.

FORREST'S ESTATE.

A Claimant Cousin Turns Up in Scotland.

[Philadelphia Special to the Chicago Tribune.]

An effort is now being made to break the will of the late Edwin Forrest, the eminent tragedian, which, if successful, will result in depriving the Forrest Home of several hundred thousand dollars and will transfer that amount of cash into the pocket of William B. Forrest, a distant cousin of the deceased, now living in Scotland. For a few days past a number of Philadelphians, intimates of the great actor, have been called upon, through process issuing out of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, to tell what they know concerning the family connections of Forrest, the number of his brothers and sisters, and the time and place of their respective deaths. The purpose of this is to show that Forrest's immediate family are all deceased, including his father and mother and brothers and sisters, and that the clause in his will which gives to the Forrest Home several hundred thousand dollars' worth of property situated in the State of New York is void and of no effect respecting the New York property, because, as it is claimed, a law of that State prevents a testator from leaving his property to a corporation not in being, or, as the lawyers say, not in esse. The Forrest Home, near Frankford, was of course not in existence at the time the will of the actor was made, and if the New York law holds good then the property in that State will go to Forrests relatives, for property situated in New York is governed by the law of the State. Taking advantage of the New York law, and claiming that he is the only living relative of the dead actor, William B. Forrest has begun suit in the Supreme Court of New York against the Forrest Home, and it is stated that a large amount of testimony has been taken by his attorney, John Towshend, of that city, concerning the pedigree of the Forrest family in Scotland, and supporting the claim of William B. Forrest that he is the only living relative, and as such is entitled to that portion of the estate situated in New York.

Another Southern Waterspout.

[From the New Orleans Picayune, July 30.]

On Thursday morning at 7 o'clock the passengers on the Mobile train saw an extraordinary large waterspout, apparently about ten miles southwest from the Rigolets Station, where the train was at the time, and about the same distance from St. Joseph's Light. It descended from the clouds, and at the point where it reached the water seemed to be enveloped in a mountain of spray fifty feet across and fifty feet in height, creating great commotion in the water. The waterspout continued visible about twenty minutes, when vivid flashes of lightning, exceedingly loud thunder and very heavy rain followed. When the train arrived in this city at 8 o'clock the passengers were surprised to find not a sign of the storm visible, the rain not having at that time reached the city. Half an hour after, however, the sky was black with clouds, and a much severer storm threatened than actually took place, the rain falling continuously, but comparatively light, for three hours, with very little thunder and lightning.

Coming Back from Colorado.

[From the Lexington (Ky.) Press, July 31.]

Mr. J. B. Grimes, who has just returned from Colorado, states that when he left Denver there were not less than 600 well educated and refined young men in that city who were literally begging their bread from door to door. They have congregated there from all the mining camps of the State and have not the means to get nearer home. One live Yankee from the State of Vermont, with more mechanical ingenuity than money, determined not to remain there, and set his wits to work to get away. By buying, begging and bartering he succeeded in getting four old flange wheels, with which he fitted up a four-wheeled railroad velocipede. This he balasted with cheap provisions and put out for the East. He left Denver behind the regular train and kept within sight of it for many miles. He was finally lost to sight, but hove into Kansas City less than 24 hours behind time.

Funeral of a French Millionaire.

[From the Parisian.]

Mr. Isaac Pereire had frequently in the closing years of his life expressed a desire that his funeral should be conducted in the simplest manner, and his wishes were respected when he was buried in Montmartre Cemetery on Thursday last, not even his cross of office of the Legion of Honor being laid on the coffin, and no military following it. More than 3,000 persons assembled at the entrance of the Jewish burial ground, however, and among among them were Messrs. Jules Ferry, Andrieux, Paul Fould, Edmond About, the Duc Decazes and J. B. Dumas. There was also present a delegation from the Pereire Deaf and Dumb School. Mr. Pereire's fortune is said to amount to 52,000,000 francs, of which the widow will receive 32,000,000, and each of the three children 6,500,000.

THOUSANDS are living unsatisfactory lives because of Indigestion; all such should try Hamburg Drops, which never fail.

BURDETT-COUTTS.

The Sexagenarian Baroness Whose Betrothal Is Announced.

[From the New York World.]

Lady Burdett-Coutts was born in 1814, and is the youngest daughter of the late Sir Francis Burdett, Baronet. Her fortune comes to her from her maternal grandfather, Sir Thomas Coutts, and she assumed his name when she inherited his property. That was in 1837, upon the termination of the life-interest of his widow, who was Miss Mellon, the actress, before he married her as his second wife, and who died the Duchess of St. Albans. Sir Thomas Coutts' first wife, the grandmother of the subject of this sketch, was Elizabeth Starkey, the daughter of a Lancashire peasant, who was a servant in the employment of the banker's brother until her marriage made her one of the first ladies of the Kingdom. The Baroness received her title in 1871. She received the freedom of the City of London in 1872, and, eighteen months later, the City of Edinburgh similarly honored her. At the end of the last Russo-Turkish war the Sultan decorated her with the grand cordon of the Order of Mdejidie in recognition of her services to the wounded. The estimation in which she is held by the people of England is shown by the fact that when, in 1868, the reform procession passed her house, and she was recognized at the window, a shout was raised, and for over two hours the air rang with the cries of the thousands who filled the street.

HOW SHE OBTAINED HER VAST FORTUNE.

In 1871 the fortune of the Baroness was estimated at £10,000,000, and up to this time she had given away for charitable purposes fully £5,000,000. In other words, after disposing of $25,000,000 for the education and care of her fellow-people, she still held fully $50,000,000 in investment. She is the richest single woman in England, and her liberality in the distribution of her vast fortune has commended her to the admiration of the civilized world.

She seems to prefer the simple title of Miss Coutts to that of Baroness Coutts, conferred upon her by Queen Victoria in 1871, in consideration of her munificent public charities. Miss Coutts lived in rather straitened circumstances during her earlier years, inheriting no property from her rich grandfather, Thomas Coutts, the eminent banker, born in 1741. At the death of his brother Peter, Mr. Coutts assumed the entire direction of the firm, which, under his control, rose to its highest prosperity. He was a gentleman in manners, hospitality and benevolence, and counted among his friends some of the first literary men and actors of his day. Soon after his settlement in London he married Elizabeth Starkey, a girl of humble origin. They lived very happily together, and had three daughters—Susan, who married the Earl of Guilford; Frances, who married the Marquis of Bute, and Sophia, mother of the subject of this sketch, who married Sir Francis Burdett, the Member of Parliament who proposed the celebrated inquiry into the state of Coldbath Fields Prison, which resulted in the dismissal of the keeper and the complete reformation of the regulations of that prison. He doubtless transmitted to his celebrated daughter many of his benevolent virtues.

Soon after the death of Mrs. Coutts in 1815, Mr. Coutts fell in love with the beautiful and accomplished Miss Harriet Mellon, a very popular actress in comedy in the early part of this century. This lady was born in 1775, and was so much younger than her opulent suitor that she declined the match, representing that the forty-four years' difference in their ages made too great a barrier to be surmounted. The enamored millionaire, however, persisted in his suit, and Miss Mellon became the happy wife of Mr. Coutts. In consequence of the violent opposition of his three daughters to his union with Miss Mellon, Mr. Coutts disinherited them, and made his wife sole mistress of his colossal fortune at his decease. About five years after the death of Mr. Coutts, the widow married the Duke of St. Albans, Grand Falconer of England, who was much younger than Mrs. Coutts. After her death she left the Duke an income of $50,000 a year and a life-interest in some landed estates. With this exception, she, from a delicate sense of justice, bequeathed the entire fortune which she received from Mr. Coutts to his granddaughter, Angela Burdett, youngest daughter of Sir Francis Burdett.

The Duchess of St. Albans, in bequeathing her fortune to Miss Angela Burdett, desired her to take the name of Coutts. This lady received the vast legacy of $20,000,000 in 1837, since which time she has been conspicuous for her charitable deeds and humanitarian schemes.

INSTANCES OF HER LIBERALITY.

Her liberality in establishing a corps of nurses under Florence Nightingale, in the Crimean war, is familiar to every one. She is said to spend her entire income, $1,000,000 to $1,200,000 a year, in her philanthropic projects. The Baroness is probably the only person living who would have found it necessary to deny more than once that she had given $2,500,000 for the relief of the distress in Ireland; but when the story was told of her, the largeness of her heart and her fortune alike made it easily credible. Her proposition, which for some reason, was not carried out, was to apply £500,000 to the purchase of lands of which industrious tenants might in time become owners. Among the very notable instances of her generosity may be mentioned the endowment of three Bishoprics (in Africa, Australia, and British Columbia), at a cost, it is stated, little less than the sum she was said to have given to the Irish. She assisted Dr. Livingstone when he was in his greatest need; and a square of model dwellings was built by her around the Columbia Market, which also she built and presented to the Corporation of London. Even this list does not exhaust her public charities, and in private she is reputed to be not less munificent.

RAISED TO THE PEERAGE.

For these and her other numerous charitable services to her country the title of Baroness was conferred upon her, in 1871, by Queen Victoria, and in 1872, for her great charity to the poor of London, the Common Council, in a public ceremony, presented to Baroness Burdett-Coutts the freedom of the city, with an address inclosed in a beautiful gold casket, bearing her arms, etc. It was paneled in compartments, on which were tableaux representing her acts of mercy, "Feeding the hungry," "Giving drink to the thirsty," "Clothing the naked," "Visiting prisoners," "Lodging the homeless," "Visiting the Sick" "Burying the dead."

MR. ELLIS ASHMEAD BARLETT, whose name is now matrimonially coupled with that of the Lady Burdett-Coutts, was born in 1849, and educated at Christ Church, Oxford, where he took the usual degrees. He was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1877, and was, until lately, one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools. At the last election he was elected to Parliament as a Conservative, for the Borough of Eye, in the place of Lord Barrington, Conservative.

Patti's Latest Rival.

[London Cor. New York Times.]

This great artist, a rival claimant to Patti's throne, left London for Dresden on Tuesday. At present no biographical notice of her has appeared in any of the journals. I am enabled to give you a few items of her history: Marcella Sembrich was born in Lemberg on the 15th of February, 1858. Her father was a teacher of music. He could play well on nearly every known instrument. No wonder that his child gave ealry signs of an unborn love of music. Before she was six her father's instruction and her own intelligence had given her quite a facility of execution on the piano. At nine she could play the violin, and at eleven she gave her first public performance. When she was thirteen she entered the Conservatoire at Lemberg, and remained there three years, during which time she occasionally appeared both as violinist and pianist at the local concerts. At sixteen she went to Vienna to finish her musical education under Liszt, and it was at this time that she discovered her vocal power. After a time she went to Milan for a new study, and to submit herself to vocal training. Her voice developed with wonderful rapidity, and her musical knowledge added speed to her advancement. She appeared at a concert at the Scala, and delighted and astonished a brilliant and critical audience. At 19 she went to Athens and made her debut, in grand opera. She was at once accepted as a prima donna. Here she married her latest music-master, Wilhelm Stengel, and this year she came to London. With her husband she called on Mr. Gye, and the impresario of Covent Garden at once gave her the opportunity of an appearance. After hearing her sing one song at rehearsal, he offered her a five years' engagement, which was accepted. It was at this first rehearsal that the orchestra laid down their instruments to applaud her. She is not pretty, but eminently interesting. She is a fine actress, and her voice is of the highest soprano compass. Her method is perfect, and her success established. She will go to Elster from Dresden for a two months' rest, after which she will sing at St. Petersburg, Madrid, and Brussels.

SEEING THE QUEEN.

An American Woman at Marlborough House.

[London Cor. Philadelphia Times.]

We were graciously bidden to Marlborough House "to have the honor of meeting her Majesty," and I thought the scene the most brilliant when all were awaiting the Queen's arrival. The lawn behind the royal residence has been beautifully laid out with carpet beds of foliage and flowering plants, and in the afternoon several marquees and tents were erected in various spots. The bands of the Royal Horse Guards and of the Rifle Brigade were in attendance and played throughout the afternoon, while the Spanish Students made music, too, in an alcove at the end of the terrace. Her Majesty was received by the Prince and Princess of Wales and their children, and leaning on the Prince's arm the Queen passed from the garden door to a tent set apart for her use, where refreshments were served. Her Majesty remained about an hour and a half and made a tour of the garden, the guests lining the paths on either side, thus enabling the Queen to speak to all those who were honored by the royal recognition, and, as with kindly smile she passed along, none seemed to escape her notice. Every one rejoiced to see the Sovereign looking so well and cheerful. The Prince and Princess received their guests with friendly greetings as they passed from the house to the garden, the Princess looking most charming in a becoming dress of pale blue and olive satin intermixed, and around her were the Royal Princes and Princesses, her own children and those of Princess Christian and the Duchess of Teck. Beauty was, of course, well represented, and many of the toilets were marvelous creations of true artistic taste. I may note two or three. Lady Lonsdale in heliotrope satin, dress and hat adorned with natural roses; Lady Clarendon in pale blue satin and pompadour brocade; Lady Anglesea (the bride) was heartily welcomed by old friends and new, and looked charming in a costume of exquisite taste—the palest gray satin, covered with flounces of fine Indian muslin and much trimmed with the same, with gray bonnet to match, and the Lady Carington in muslin over lilac, and her youngest sisters with her, all in white, made a charming group. Mrs. Cornwallis West, Mrs. Langtry and Mrs. Wheeler were there. Though 2,000 invitations had been sent out, there was room for every one and no crowd at any time. Her Majesty had taken leave of the Prince and Princess just before 7 o'clock and returned to Windsor, attended by an escort of the Eighteenth Hussars. The Queen and her household were of course in black, but as a rule most brilliant colors were worn by all besides. The tents and marquees pitched in the grounds were of different kinds; some were of gorgeous coloring, which had a beautiful effect against the surrounding foliage. One large tent, reaching from the east angle of the house to the boundary wall, was set apart for refreshments—the tables loaded with magnificent fruit. The Siamese Embassadors, who lately delivered the Order of the White Elephant to her Majesty, were present in European dress, but there was an incongruity in their appearance, as with frock-coats and tall hats they had elected to wear shoes, stockings and knickerbockers. I never saw the Princess of Wales looking more charming than she did at this garden party. Whenever I see her I remember what a French girl told me her lover once had the courage to avow: "Mimi, when I meet you, ma petite, I always feel as if I ought to kneel down and cross myself, as I do at the feet of la Sainte Vierge." The pretty Princess certainly inspires a reverential awe, as a Queen in futuro of course always should do; but, apart from this, her face has a pathos which is indescribably sweet.

Hydrophobic Horror.

[Lancaster (Pa.) Special to the Chicago Times.]

One of the most distressing cases of death from hydrophobia occurred here last night, the victim being Annie, a bright and intelligent 8-year-old daughter of John Booth, a resident of this city. The circumstances attending the case are about as follows: On June 12 last, Annie, in company with two other children of about the same age, was sent to the farm-house of John Weaver, a neighbor, for some milk. An ordinary house dog was chained in the yard and, knowing nothing of the fact that the dog had been acting strangely for several days prior to this, Annie went close to the animal, when it jumped at her, biting her on the wrist, making an ugly wound. Luckily the other children were not near enough to be bitten by the brute. The little girl was taken home at once and the wound received medical attention. Mr. Booth, the father of Annie, was notified of the strange actions of the dog on the day the child was bitten and at once became anxious as to the result of the wound. He visited the farm of Weaver to see the dog, when he was told it had broken loose from the chain shortly after the occurrence and was found the next day dead. Dr. Warren attended the little sufferer, and told the parents that if the dog had drank on the day he bit the child this fact would go to prove that the dog was not affected with hydrophobia. Weaver was visited, and said the dog had taken his regular food and drank water on the above date. This quieted the fears of Mr. Booth somewhat. However, the child suffered great pain in her wrist; otherwise she did not complain. On Sunday last she was found by her parents lying asleep in the entry of the house. She had a high fever. This remained with her until yesterday morning. About 8 she came in the same entry, gave one scream and fell to the floor insensible. She was placed on the sofa by her mother. At this time the child would snap at those present, and make a noise similar to the barking of a dog. Several physicians were called in, but nothing could be done to alleviate the suffering of the child. When they tried to give her medicine she would bite at the teaspoon. The sight of water or the shake of a handkerchief would throw her into violent spasms. She was sensible to the last, and knew what was transpiring, telling those around her that she had been bitten by a mad dog. Her sufferings continued to the last, her death occurring in one of the spasms. The action of Weaver in keeping the dog about his premises after its strange actions previous to biting the little girl is severely censured.

The Italians in New York.

[From the Springfield Republican.]

Two-thirds of the Italians in New York City live within a quarter of a mile of the Mercer Street Police Station, spending their days selling watery lemonade, bad peanuts and worse cigars on the street corners, turning band-organs and picking rags, or in some one of the similar pursuits which have been tacitly abandoned to the children of Italy. Their evenings are generally devoted to drinking stale beer or the more aristocratic amusement of using the stiletto, which is usually an old knife or file, pointed and fastened with wire to a handle made from a broomstick. The poorer Italians live on the scraps of old meat the butchers can not sell or give away. A number of them also go around every day to the beer shops of the city and collect the beer out of the half-emptied glasses and the dregs in the kegs. They take this to their rooms, which they turn into retail stores for the time being, and sell it to their compatriots. E. P. Bergamini, who came from Italy in 1850 and felt the inspiration of Rev. Dr. Muhlenberg's life, started a mission for the people four years ago, and in winter as many as 300 attend his Sunday service.

PAN.

This Pan is but an idle god, I guess,
  Since all the fair midsummer of my dreams
  He loiters listlessly by woody streams,
Soaking the lush glooms up with laziness,
Or drowsing where the maiden winds caress
  Him wantonly, and powder him with gleams
  Of sifted sunshine. And he ever seems Drugged with unutterable joy; unless
  His low pipes whistle hints of it far out
Across the ripples to the dragon fly,
  That, like a wind-born blossom blown about,
Drops quiveringly down as though to die,
  Then lifts and wavers on, as if in doubt
  Whether to fan his wings or fly without.

JAMES W. RILEY.

COLORADO'S CAPITAL.

Some of the Striking Characteristics of Denver City.

[Denver Cor. New York Sun.]

This city may enrol herself among the worst-governed cities in the Union. Sanitary precautions are neglected, garbage is piled up in the alleys and the water supply, secured at enormous cost, is openly pronounced a source of disease. The City Fathers spend their time in wrangling over their relative degrees of corruption. The contract for a much-needed sewer is to be let, and as most of the Aldermen are directly interested in brick yards, the difficulty of an impartial award is correspondingly increased.

The pleasant characteristics of the city are animation, a royal mountain view, and long, straight, level drives, perfect enough to inspire a saint with a love of fast horses. Life here would indeed be tame and colorless without horses, the inseparable friends of the frontiersman. If a resident, you cannot have much pleasure without a horse and buggy. Denver has no parks nor suburbs easy of access, and you soon exhaust the interesting walks. Tall cottonwoods border the streets, filling the air at times with exasperating down. Streams and jets of water give to the gardens an Oriental effect. When neighbors meet in the evening to fight over their respective ditches, or when you hear the overtaxed citizen groaning as he pays his water-rate, you catch a glimpse of the other side of the picture.

High prices are the rule. Complaints against lodging-house keepers are loud, but they hold out bravely, charging for one room sufficient to pay the rent of a house. Persons of moderate means have declared independence and gone into camp. Two of these communities exist. One that I saw was a picturesque street of tents under the trees in West Denver. Common necessaries are cheap and pure air is free, but if the present management continues there will be little enough of that to be had in a short time. The health of the city is not good, winter or summer. This season diseases of a typhoid character are alarmingly prevalent. With all that, however, a large proportion of the adult population consists of Eastern invalids who have recuperated here, and who can claim the right to praise the climate. It is often extremely disagreeable, but so whimsical in its fickleness that it makes life elsewhere monotonous by contrast. The heart of January is sometimes glorified by the brightest of summer days, and May wades out through three feet of snow. The winters are very long. A gust of wind alters everything in five minutes. Violent wind-storms are frequent, the alkali dust they raise in Denver proving a severe trial to weak lungs and delicate throats. At such times your hair crackles and seems to flame up under the brush. Your nerves, too, are sensitive and irritable. After you have been thoroughly disgusted by a display of every possible climatic meanness, you experience a change. Beneath a wonderful sky, in a clear, stimulating atmosphere, you exclaim that only here is life worth living. Denver, with her gardens, her trees, and the blue glory of her hills in the background, becomes a type of the eternal youth that triumphs over the desert and the savage. Rise, then, if you are wise, and fly before you are tempted into joining the steadfast army of property-holders, who, if they heard the last trumpet, would hesitate to respond lest it prove a device to retard the development of Colorado's resources.

Very few people who live here a long time can be happy elsewhere. The country takes a firm hold upon them, and the luxury of its freedom and the splendor of its barren beauty grow more charming than all that civilization can offer in exchange. The "best society" of Denver would have delighted the soul of Dickens. It contains ladies and gentlemen, but they neither control it nor impart its peculiar tone. Money is the sole letter of introduction demanded by a frontier aristocracy exclusive after its own fashion. Mainly composed of ignorant persons who have acquired wealth, no matter how, it surrounds itself with an atmosphere of perpetual self-gratulation. "Delightfully unconventional," you call it, if you wish to be polite. A man may steal his master's silver in New York, and come out here and take a leading position while the officers are hunting for him.

Bad Place for Emigrants.

[From the New York Times.]

A brig arrived here a day or two ago, with a number of South Americans, men, women and children, who left Rosario, in the Argentine Republic, to go to the Canary Islands, having become disgusted with the constant internecine strife in the country they have quitted. It seems odd, such immigration from the West to the East, from the New to the Old World. The Canaries would not appear, with their volcanoes, earthquakes, scarcity of water, sparse population, and many natural disadvantages, to be attractive to any class of people seeking a new home. But they are a Spanish possession, and the inhabitants are as nearly Spaniards as they are anything, and as the Argentine Republicans are subsubstantially of the same race, the far-away islands may have for them peculiar allurements. The Canaries do not, at least, have constant civil wars and endless revolutions, which are the special curse of the South American States, and far more to be dreaded than any convulsions of nature. It is strange that all the intelligent people of our sister continent do not emigrate to any quarter of the globe where something like political permanence and peace may be found. If all South America were an Eden, it would not be worth living in in its present, and what promises to be its everlasting, condition. This party of emigrants may be only pioneers. It would be perfectly natural that thousands of others should follow, and leave South America to political chaos.

How English Lawyers Grow Rich.

[From the London Law Times.]

It is seldom that an English judge upon the bench condemns the excessive costs of litigation and of legal proceedings generally in this country. We would that it were done more often, hardly less in the interest of the profession than on public grounds. We hope that the strong but becoming language in which Lord Justice James recently condemned the enormous cost of litigation will not be lost upon our profession, and especially upon those members of it upon whom the responsibilities of a seat in Parliament are now resting. Is it wise, we ask, for lawyers to try the experiment of leaving laymen, both in and out of Parliament, to cut down the cost of legal proceedings? Is it not the duty of the legal profession itself to take up this question and apply the necessary remedies, some of which are already at hand? Any sufficient, and therefore substantial, alterations in legal procedure must necessarily affect large numbers of members of the profession; in some cases adversely, and in others to their advantage.

Among the sources which give rise to costs, the incurring of which might often be avoided, the following may be mentioned: Pleadings, which practice the Judicature Acts have, to all intents and purposes, preserved; the central, instead of the local administration of justice; the interests and privileges of the bar; the system by which solicitors are remunerated; the practice of the Judges in granting new trials; the unnecessarily large fees often received by counsel, and allowed on taxation; the scale of costs drawn with a distinct view of encouraging solicitors to employ counsel, instead of vice versa; the delay in dealing with the High Court of Justice; the uncertainty of the law as at present administered, in the absence of a code, and in view of the enormous accumulation of case law, and by which litigation sometimes becomes little better than a gambling speculation; and finally, both branches of the profession are filled to overcrowding, and the result is a residuum in both branches of speculative lawyers who are a danger to society, and who include the black sheep of the profession.

FIGHTING FOR A WOMAN.

Pitchfork, Revolver and Shot-Gun the Weapons.

[Syracuse Special to Cincinnati Commercial.]

About a year ago Silas Olds, of Unadilla, married Amanda Harris, a daughter of Asa Harris, a former proprietor of a traveling side show exhibition. The marriage was a distasteful venture for both parties, and a separation took place a short time ago. Geo. McCumber, a one-armed soldier, who derives his income from the pension provisions, became enamored of Amanda and sought an interview with her separated husband, in which the latter resigned all claims on his wife to McCumber. Yesterday McCumber started to bring the girl, who resides with her father about three miles distant from the village, where they were to meet the husband, who would then quitclaim to all interest in the property; but on arriving at her father's home she had left, it was thought with another man. The father was at work in the barn near the house. McCumber went to the barn and laid the matter before the interested parent, who couldn't see the bargain in the light in which it was presented. The two began to argue the case and soon came to blows, when Harris seized a pitchfork and stabbed McCumber several times in the side and head, inflicting serious wounds. McCumber drew a revolver and fired three shots at Harris, none of which took effect. Harris ran to the house and seized a shot-gun and fired at McCumber, but he fired too high, and only a few of them struck him, lodging in his head. He then knocked him down with the butt of the gun. The injured man was taken in a wagon to a physician and his wounds were dressed. Several shots were removed from his head and the wounds made by the tines of the fork were sewed. Warrants have been issued for the arrest of both parties.

Champagne Now and Then.

[From the Boston Herald.]

Although sparkling champagne has made its appearance at highly patrician tables in England ever since the times of King Charles II, who was very partial to it, the consumption of the wine among the middle classes was, so recently as fifty or sixty years ago, of the most limited kind. Critics have often animadverted on the parsimony of the British government in allowing only a single bottle of champagne a day for the table of Napoleon at St. Helena; and Sir Walter Scott protested against the conduct of Lord Bathurst and Sir Hudson Lowe in denying the captive "even the solace of intoxication." The truth is that Napoleon did not care for champagne. His favorite wine was Chambertin, and of that he partook very sparingly; and it is possible that the largest share of the solitary flask of "fizz" allotted to his table fell to the officers of his suite. Champagne was always a ladies' wine. In 1815 it was certainly not a vintage much prized by gentlemen. The recognized beverage for good, steady after-dinner drinking was port, with sherry for a wind-up or "whitewash;" and the British Government, so far from being stingy, doubtless expected that the exile would take his bottle or so of Carbonnelle or Sandeman after dinner.

Raising Quails in a Tame State.

[Raritan (N. J.) Cor. New York Times.]

Henry Benbrook, a dealer in game, residing here, has succeeded in raising young quails, an operation that has been tried in the United States repeatedly, but which hitherto has proved futile. Four years ago he captured two Morris county quails, the female being lowland and the male highland. The female laid twenty-four eggs the first year, but could not be induced to set. The second year Mr. Benbrook was in Canada, and nothing was done with the birds. The third year the female made its nest, laid twelve eggs, and after setting ten days died. The male bird then sat on the eggs, and six quails were hatched. They were all raised by Benbrook, and are still living. These young quails began laying on May 21 last, and up to July 31 have laid 108 eggs, but they show no signs of setting as yet. Some of the eggs were placed under a bantam chicken and six of them hatched, and the quails are alive to-day. This experiment of raising young quails has been undertaken by game societies all over the world for years, but this is the first time any one has succeeded, so far as the record shows.

The Profits of a Newspaper Proprietor.

[From the Wall Street Daily News.]

Jay Gould's winniggs during the last year are variously estimated, but on any reckoning his capital has been rolling up like a snow ball. A year ago he sold 100,000 shares of Union Pacific for about $7,500,000. Then he bought a controlling interest in Kansas Pacific which was at 12, for about $600,000, and in the next six months the stock rose to 92, netting $4,000,000. Wabash was at 18 when Gould bought, some say, two-thirds of the stock, and it rose later to 68 1-2. His profits on the consolidation of the St. Louis Northern (which he bought at 7 1-2 and saw rise to 47) and Wabash are put at $4,850,000. In all, by spending about $3,850,000 for stocks, Gould has netted $11,000,000, if he were to sell out.

RIVER NEWS.

THE E. H. Durfee leaves on Saturday for Missouri River.

THE A. Mitchell brought 400 brls onions from Davenport.

THE Mattie Belle, Capt. Ball, for Missouri River this evening.

REMEMBER the Josie. She is the Diamond Jo. Line packet for St. Paul.

THE Dora leaves promptly this afternoon for Clarksville and way landings.

THE War Eagle, Capt. Thompson, for Keokuk and St. Paul at 4 this afternoon.

THE Belle of Shreveport leaves the Anchor Wharfboat, for New Orleans, Saturday evening.

THE Gen. Rucker will leave for Chester and Grand Tower at 5 this evening. Geo. D. Moore in command.

CAPT. M. H. CARPENTER left for Jeffersonville, last evening, to witness progress on the new beacon-light steamer.

THE steamer Key West of the Coulson line has been chartered to the Baker line, and is running from Bismarck to Benton.

THE Josie passed Quincy at 8 this morning and will arrive to-night and leave at 4 p. m. to-morrow for St. Paul. She has two barges in tow.

THE John L. Rhoads, Capt. H. B. Cock, will leave for Cincinnati and way landings. Mr. Fisher occupies the office. She goes to-morrow evening.

THE splendid steamer Wyoming, which carries over 15,000 sacks of grain in a low water Missouri River stage, left last night on her third trip to that river, with a moderate up stream freight.

THE river can neither create cargoes nor haul them to the bank, says the Globe-Democrat. A river can carry the cargoes to the bank of the ocean, though, much cheaper than railroads can do it.

"ON the Upper Mississippi there is a most plentiful lack of growth," says the G.-D. Put a few railroad steals into Upper Mississippi packet lines, and you will cure the malady. We venture the assertion that the editor of the G.-D. owns railroad shares.

THE river can carry only such trade as the railroad brings to the wharf, says the Globe-Democrat. Another mistake of the G.-D. Ocean ships can exchange cargoes with river vessels, which will bring ocean cargoes to anywhere along the Western rivers at one-half rail rates and make good profits.

CAPT. E. W. GOULD says truly: "The marine interests of the Valley are daily becoming more and more important;" but the Globe-Democrat says: "The census returns, as far as received, make a very poor showing for the cities which have put their trust in that 'great natural artery of commerce, the Mississippi.'"

NEW ORLEANS Picayune: The railroad war affects steamboat travel some, but not so much as many suppose, for the so-called low rates are not so low after all. Add your return tickets, meals and sleepers both ways and the steamboat rates are much the lowest, not to mention the better accommodations for travel. Time is all the road excels the river in.

PITTSBURG Telegraph: Capt. Adams stated to the writer yesterday that he had sent the documents to Louisville containing his appeal from the decision of the Local Inspectors of that district regarding the sinking of the Alice. Capt. Adams does not seem certain that he will get a fair show at Louisville, and intimates that he will take the matter to the highest tribunal.

DAVENPORT, August 3.—The Mary Morton passed up last evening with an enormous quantity of freight on board and her cabin full of passengers. A large quantity of agricultural implements were taken on at this port and Rock Island. Notwithstanding this "heavy pressure," she moved along at a lively gait, and shows herself worthy of being termed the "fastest of them all."

PITTSBURG Dispatch: It seems singular the New York papers should speak of the Longfellow as being the first of her class. This is a mistake. Between thirty and forty years ago a double-hulled steamer, called on account of the shape of her hull "the Cigar Boat," paid on the Hudson for awhile, and was a great success so far as speed was concerned. Her propelling power was a paddle-wheel between her hulls, and it was claimed for her at the time that she was the fastest boat on the river, and fast she must have been, for the South America, that had made twenty six miles in an hour, was then in first-class running order. "The Cigar Boat" was destroyed by being sunk on the rocks, and it was thought at the time that her loss was more the result of design than of accident. We predict that the Henry W. Longfellow, in her present shape and with her present propelling power will be a flat failure as a fast boat. The talk of submerging her propeller is the sheerest nonsense, as she only draws about two feet of water, and any one with the slightest knowledge of nautical affairs knows that it will not do to have the propeller below the hulls. Even if the screw propeller is taken out the hulls are too close together (being but ten feet apart) to permit a proper-sized paddle wheel to be used to propel her at anything like the speed designed for her.

Freights and Pooling.

The following is a communication:

We are pleased to know that river transportation managers have concluded that carrying freights for less than the cost of doing it is not profitable. On July 1st starvation rates on cargo died. On the second day of August a tariff of paying rates was published as established by the Anchor Line and approved by the Mississippi Valley Transportation Company. All the leading railroads in the country have gone into pooling arrangements, and thereby equalized tariff rates on freights. This is better for fair business men. Two years ago railroad rates were so low that railroad stock was almost worthless; now with a fair pooling arrangement railroad stock all over this country is sought for as investments. There is no doubt that steamboat stocks will improve provided boat-owners will establish fair and remunerative rates for doing business and stick to their tariff. If any outsider interferes by cutting the tariff let him get his cargo if he can do so and paddle his own canoe. Well organized lines can always procure the cream of the business, and thereby make money every time by charging uniform rates. We will say to our transportation men, charge uniform and money-making prices for doing business, but be careful not to be exorbitant.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Camera Obscura.

This pretty exhibition has become more than a novelty, and from the opening hour until the closing it is visited by crowds.

Uhrig's Cave.

Last evening the largest audience of the season was present at the Garden Theater to witness the pretty performance of the Spanish Students. So far each evening there has been a remarkable increase in attendance. The Students are well worthy of the lavish praises that have been bestowed upon them. With the exception of the overture from "Martha," the selections of the evening were new. In addition to the programme the Students played the "Turkish Patrol" and a medley of national airs, both of which were well received. A new programme will be presented each evening.

A New Kink in Scotch Law.

[From the Edinburgh Scotsman, July 19.]

On Sunday an extraordinary scene took place in Irvine Parish Church. During the singing of a hymn, previous to the commencement of the sermon, an elderly man of singular appearance entered the church and attracted general notice by his strange demeanor. Clutching by the middle an old umbrella, he walked with a determined aspect up the area of the church, claiming audibly that he intended to occupy the minister's seat. This pew, which is situated well to the front in the area of the church, was completely filled, but nevertheless he crushed himself into it, compelling one of the occupants to seek another seat. Having hustled himself into this position, he waited patiently until the conclusion of the hymn, but no sooner had the minister risen to announce his text than the man arose and, taking from his pocket a paper, he addressed the minister by name and commenced to read a long statement purporting to be an interdict forbidding certain lawyers and others in Irvine from proceeding with the sale of certain property. The document occupied about five minutes in reading, and minutely described the situation of the property down to the square yards it measured; but as he apparently did not consider the statement sufficiently explanatory, he took out an extremely long handkerchief from his pocket and began a practical demonstration of the measurement. When the man had finished the minister quietly asked some of the office-bearers to remove him, which was accordingly done without any disturbance taking place. He stated that what he had done was in pursuance of an old ecclesiastical law entitling people to claim publicly in church any property of which they threatened to be dispossessed by legal action. The police afterwards conveyed him home.

A Zulu Princess.

[London Post, July 19.]

On Saturday a negro named George Williams was apprehended at Chesterfield for having stolen £15 and a watch, the property of the landlord of a local public house. The prisoner formed part of a troupe of performers who had been recently performing in that town, and on his companions leaving Chesterfield he entered the employment of the publican as a Zulu bar maid, he having previously passed as a Zulu princess. He shortly afterwards decamped with the missing articles, and his capture had the effect of discovering the fraud and the sex of the prisoner.

UHRIG'S CAVE—Spanish Students.

As a returner of thanks Garfield is a great success in swinging the segment of a circle. He can say "thank you" very gracefully.

THE insatiate monsters of the Radical press are not clamoring for Hancock's ancient epistles as much as they were. One sufficed.

PAUL'S epistle to the Ephesians and Hancock's letter to Sherman will stand out on the face of time as models of sound doctrine and comprehensive wisdom.

J. MADISON WELLS is talked of as a candidate for Congress in the Shreveport (La.) district. It is a peculiarity of the Republican party in the South that it loves to honor its representative men.

JOHN SHERMAN has gone to New York to attend the conference of the frightened Republican leaders, with the announcement that one of the pleasing duties of this conference will be to bury Civil Service Reform. Hayes ought to be invited to the funeral.

BACKED by their own good sense and the powerful advice of the POST-DISPATCH, the Democrats of the Eleventh District yesterday renominated Hon. John B. Clark, Jr., for Congress. People who enjoy our favor and indorsement seem to prosper this year. The reason of this is that we never smile upon the unworthy.

WHILE this country is excited over the boarding of American ships by Alfonso's men-of-war, the delicate information is cabled from Madrid that the birth of an heir to the throne is expected to occur about the end of August. Until some reparation is made us for the insults offered our flag we cannot wish the family well.

THE molders employed in the Louisville and Nashville Railroad shops at the former city struck a few days ago. To-day the molders in the Ohio Falls Car Works will quit work. The molders now get $2 25, and want an increase of twenty-five cents. A dispatch from Louisville states that there is likely to be a general and serious strike.

IT is charged that the Democratic Delegation which Missouri sends to Congress is lacking in intellectual weight. The Republicans ought to trot out a Daniel Webster in some district by way of specimen. It would be a curiosity to see a Republican running for Congress in this State with qualifications fitting him for the functions of a Justice of the Peace.

GARFIELD'S hippodroming performances through New York State yesterday will not add much to his reputation. The crowds of curious people assembled at the various stations to catch a glimpse of a notorious man were treated to flabby little speeches, which lacked originality and incisiveness. He found it necessary in nearly every instance to put forward somebody to represent him. He either has little to say or is afraid to say it.

IT has not been definitely settled yet that the old reprobates picked up in Nebraska are a detachment of the infamous Bender family. When all doubt on the point of identification has been removed a premium will probably be offered for somebody to invent a new death torture. The general impression prevails in Kansas that such mild forms of death as burning at the stake and drawing with horses would be entirely too agreeable for the Benders.

GEN. WEAVER, Presidential nominee, who has been gyrating round the country waving the bloody shirt for the past month, makes a persuasive appeal for money. He wants every Greenbacker in the country to contribute one dollar for a campaign fund. If Weaver's request is strictly complied with in St. Louis he will get about forty dollars from this city.

MEASURES are being taken by the Chicago Council to compel telegraph companies doing business in the city to bury their wires under ground. Since the introduction of the telephone and fire alarm systems our cities have been covered with a network of wire. The ferruginous threads festoon our houses, decorate our chimneys and droop from unsightly poles in various stages of decay along our streets. It is as if some monster metallic spider had invaded the domain of man and had spun his web wherever he could find a coign of vantage. What effect these masses of wire may have upon electric currents in times of storm is not known, but it is suspected that they attract considerable lightning. At all events they interfere with fire escapes, annoy the ladder brigade at conflagrations and are generally unsightly. The time is approaching when every city controlled by men who are not influenced by corporate bribes will force the telegraph and telephone people to adopt the underground system.

LADY BURDETT-COUTTS.

It is gratifying to those who are matrimonially inclined, as well as those who have entered the condition so vehemently prescribed by society, to know that people never grow so old as to lose their desire for mating. It has been said of woman that she is not averse to matrimony so long as she can feel the heat of a live coal on the bottom of her feet, but the example of the octogenarian Lord, who rushed off and married the dashing widow Hicks, a few years ago, and then lay down and died, like Falstaff, plucking the coverlid and babbling of green fields, shows that the yearning for sexual companionship is as strong in mighty man as in weak woman. The whole world was astonished not long ago when the venerable George Eliot took to her bosom a husband young enough to be her son; but here is the announcement of a matrimonial alliance which will afford society a charming sensation. The Baroness Burdett-Coutts, the wealthiest woman in England, who has reached her sixty-sixth year without yielding to the blandishments of man, has concluded finally to enter the matrimonial state. As usual, there is a discrepancy of ages. The Baroness proposes to confer her name and chattels upon Mr. Ashmead Bartlett, her Private Secretary and almoner, whose confidential relations for several years have inspired the old lady with a desire for closer communion. Bartlett is only twenty-nine years of age. He is a native of America, as is Cross, the new husband of George Eliot, and was but recently made a subject of Queen Victoria. He is said to own a seat in Parliament. A short time ago an announcement of this engagement was made and was promptly denied by Bartlett. The best friends of the Baroness and some of the most conspicuous people in English society have used their endeavors to break off the relations between her and the talented young Secretary, but all to no purpose. The engagement is now authoritatively announced and the wedding will soon take place. By this act the Baroness will forfeit a large portion of her income—$500,000 a year, it is said. This is in accordance with the will of Harriet Mellon, Duchess of St. Albans, who bequeathed her vast property to Miss Angela, now the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, providing, if she married an alien or naturalized subject, her interest in the Coutts Bank and other properties shall cease. The supposition is that Lady Coutts is desirous of making young Bartlett the heir to her immense property, and that she has adopted this method. Certainly there can be no prospect of happiness in such a match. If the venerable Baroness is able to prolong her life a few years more she will probably have reason to distrust the fidelity of her husband, and to suspect that her money is being squandered where more congenial love is found. That has been the history of such alliances since the experience of David and Solomon. Lady Burdett-Coutts has been a noble, kind-hearted woman. Her benefactions have always been proportionate to her immense revenues and in giving her heart and hand to her young secretary she is probably actuated by a benevolent desire to aid a worthy gentleman. Let us hope so. Perhaps, though, this woman of gray hairs and unbounded wealth has at last come to realize the utter loneliness and isolation of her situation. Perhaps the longing for sympathy has broken down the celibate resolve of a lifetime. Perhaps she goes to her destiny impelled by the same singular influence which induces the daughter of wealth and luxury to forsake home and all to follow the fortunes of a coachman or an itinerant music teacher; which lulls the man of ease and abundance to poverty in a cottage with the daughter of a ploughman; which brings age and youth, innocence and crime, intellect and stupidity upon one common platform—which, in fact, has entailed more misery and suffering and regret upon the human race than all other passions combined, but which has graced it as well with the tenderest thoughts, the richest contentment and the most unalloyed pleasure known to life, and is, after all, the one thing worth living for. It is that subtle but mighty power which, according to the poet, "rules the court, the camp, the grove, and man below and heaven above." Let us hope that the richest female citizen of the world is about to pay her tribute to the majesty of Love.

A RARE old bird has made his appearance in politics in this State. It is Judge W. C. Price, a gentleman who claims to have acted with the Democratic party for forty years, and to have held a small position in the Treasury Department under Buchanan. He has not entirely recovered from his desire to hold office, and in a recent number of a Springfield paper he announces himself as a candidate for the Legislature from the Eastern District of Greene county. In his proclamation the Judge lays down the novel proposition that "pro-slavery is the law of God and a factor in the science of human redemption;" that "secession under the circumstances, superinduced by this fact, is and was the truth of God, the law of heaven, and will stand," and that "the honest part of American society is in the Democracy, the Southern wing of which party is most virtually intelligent." As startling as these propositions may be they are as familiar as Watt's hymns compared with the doctrine laid down by the Judge in the last clause of his pronunciamento, to-wit:

That the American States, being originally pro-slavery, constituted the third theocratic predicament of the world's history, and was a fulfillment of that prophecy, "God shall enlarge Japheth, and he shall dwell in the tents of Shem and Canaan shall be his servant."—Genesis 98; 27.

As a curiosity the Judge may attract some attention, but we are hardly prepared to believe that the people of Greene county will reduce the price of their land, invite the sheep-rot, smut and hog cholera, and drive immigration from the State by electing the Judge to the Legislature. It would give striking emphasis to the prophecy about Japheth and the enslavement of Canaan to send the Judge to Jefferson City in a legislative capacity; but Japheth got all he was entitled to from Canaan, and there is a disposition to let by-gones be by-gones. Somehow we can't help admiring the devotion of the Judge to his decayed principles. Unshaken by events, he stands amid modern truth like the lonely pillar of Cheops. After all, there is something touchingly heroic and inspiring in the picture drawn by Wilkie Collins, in "Antonina," of the pagan priest struggling frantically to stem the tide of Christianity and maintain his idols among the falling temples of the new Rome.

PIETRO BALBO, the fantastic little Italian who murdered his wife in a fit of jealousy about a year ago, will be hanged in the Tombs jail-yard, in New York, to-morrow. Cards for the occasion are already out and the doomed culprit is reported to be cheerfully preparing himself for the inevitable. Balbo's case has excited a wide-spread sympathy in New York and elsewhere and Gov. Cornell has exhibited a commendable degree of backbone in refusing to commute the punishment of the condemned man. All the leading Italians of New York joined in a petition for executive clemency, and special efforts were made by the Italian Consul and by Campinini, the singer. The charge is made by Balbo's attorney that the execution of his client is a political necessity; that, the Governor having refused to interfere in behalf of Chastine Cox, who was only a common nigger, the colored voters of New York have declared they will no longer vote the Republican ticket if discrimination is shown in Balbo's case, and that Cornell dare not interfere. This statement may or may not be true, but the country at large is not going to get up and howl because Cornell allows the law to take its course. Nobody will complain that one more murderer is out of the way.

THERE used to be a legend that the delicious bivalve, the oyster, was only fit for human delectation and nourishment in the months which contained an r. At the seaboard no oyster connoisseur could be found eating his favorite shell-fish in warm weather, though it may have been snatched from Neptune's salty pastures only an hour before. But we are progressing in our notions about oysters. There is no season in the year in which the luckless crustacean can claim exemption. Here in St. Louis, a thousand miles from the sea-board, in the month of August, we have him served in every style. Our oyster saloons are all open and barrels and kegs arrive by express daily, filled with the astonished denizens of the Chesapeake, either alive and kicking or scarce composed in death. This is a great luxury. Though the early oyster may be lacking in flavor and may not have that solid, fleshy fatness which comes from a touch of frost and continued cold weather, he is still a welcome visitor to the trans-Mississippi department and we hail his advent as a harbinger that the day when the mosquito will cease to trouble draweth nigh. Bless the man who discovered that O-r-g-u-s-t was the true orthography.

IN last Thursday's issue of the POST-DISPATCH an article appeared upon the insufficient policing of the district bounded by Eleventh, Cerre and Elm streets and by the river. Many of the respectable people in that region, and there are just as many good citizens within the indicated limits as in any other part of St. Louis of equal size, have strangely fallen into the error of believing that a sweeping condemnation was meant of everybody end everything within the boundaries designated. The writer of the article in question happens himself to dwell within that district and the intention of the statements, which have been altogether misconstrued, was to call the attention of the police authorities to an unprotected part of the town guarded by only four policemen. The limits taken were the limits of these officers' beats—the whole territory they are expected to cover. Every one knows that part of Almond street is rotten with bagnios and filled with a dangerous and criminal population and for the safety of the decent and respectable people who live within a short distance ought to be more thoroughly and rigidly policed. It needs a strong statement of the case to move the police authorities, whose hands are tied and who are embarrassed by an insufficient force and jealous laws, and it is for the benefit of the Ward and for the security of life and property within these limits that the article was written. No one who reviews the case calmly will allow that four officers are enough for this territory. They give a false shadow of protection without its substance and none have been quicker to grasp this fact than the crooks themselves, who daily become bolder and more enterprising. In fine, it is idle to think that the POST-DISPATCH meant or means any disrespect to the thousands of good citizens and virtuous, estimable ladies in this territory. None was intended and none should be taken. On the other hand the effort to secure good and efficient protection for these very people should be appreciated and aided, not hindered by a too sensitive under-statement of the facts.

MR. STEPHEN DUDLEY FIELD, of New York, nephew of Cyrus W. Field, has patented an invention for applying electricity to the motive power on both surface and elevated railroads. His patent is claimed to antedate the claims of other parties who have lately taken up the subject. The new invention will be tested on the elevated roads, and if successful will be adopted. It is claimed for the invention that it does without the fuel, smoke, oil, heat and noise of locomotives and permits the highest speed consistent with safety. Another point urged in its favor is that an attachment has been provided which will render a collision between two trains impossible, each train automatically preserving a safe distance from the next succeeding one. The brakes will be operated by electrical currents used in propelling the electric motor.

FROM one end of the country to the other there is a spasm of indignation and a loud cry goes up inquiring whether this is a free and popular government. On Saturday night last, John H. Harris, a negro orator from Virginia, undertook to deliver a Democratic address at Newcastle, Delaware. He was set upon by a gang of Republican negroes, brutally stoned and forced to seek the protection of the Sheriff. This terrible outrage will alarm every friend of free speech in the land. So long as such crimes as this exist our Magna Charta, with its decorative amendments, is nothing more than a second-class hotel napkin. The colored people of Delaware owe it to themselves to right this great wrong, for unless public sentiment condemns it at once, millions of thrifty emigrants will be kept away from their inviting State.

A SAD story is telegraphed from Washington City. It is claimed that the Democratic Congressional Committee is unable to raise money to pay for a street banner which it ordered and that the gorgeous emblem, so necessary to success, lies ignominiously in an express office with a C. O. D. attachment. With no department clerks or office-holders to rob the committee is in a helpless condition. In the absence of a banner the managers might attract some attention by hanging up a photograph of a small section of the De Golyer wooden pavement in front of their headquarters.

CHICAGO can not get along without at least one murder a day. Tuesday night a woman who kept a saloon filled a man up with beer and then beat him to death with the empty keg. Yesterday a man and his wife kicked their thirteen-year-old daughter until she became a fit subject for the Coroner. The Benders are nowhere when compared with the Chicago blood-drinkers. Nearly every ward has a family that lays Kate and the old man and young John in the shade.

THE life of Gen. Garfield, published by the Harpers, may justly rank as a work of fiction. The author in one place speaks of "a horse shot on the full gallop, the rider being hurled fifteen feet forward by the momentum, but turning a complete somerset he lights on his feet and waves his sword for his men to come on as if nothing had happened." Even blind men would follow such a gymnastic leader into battle for the sake of the grand and lofty tumbling.

GOLDSMITH MAID'S colt, for which the owner refused $20,000, killed itself the other night trying to jump over a pasture fence. Naturally a colt worth that much money would be ambitious, but we'll bet that a $5 colt could have jumped over that fence and then rolled to the bottom of a half-mile hill without turning a hair.

THE Carthage Banner calls on somebody to explain why it is that the rough, broken and poor Republican county of Douglass has increased more during the past ten years than the rich and fertile Bourbon counties of Clay, Cooper, Howard, Platte and Marion combined. What do they eat down there, anyhow?

HENRY STOKES, who was hanged in Southern Florida the other day, went to his death laughing and smiling. As a rule the laugh is on the man who is going to have his neck broken, but there was probably something very droll about the crowd that assembled to see Stokes "jump the world to come."

AT Manassas, Va., one oat seed produced stalks which yielded 1,000 perfect grains. The great battle in that vicinity must have been valuable as a fertilizer.

IT has been clearly demonstrated by old Skin-and-bones Tanner that a man can live forty days on water alone. Now let him try a forty-day heat on beer.

CITIZENS who are called on to contribute to Weaver's campaign fund will appreciate the philanthropy which has introduced small coins to St. Louis.

Our City's Benefactor.

[From the Washington Post.]

Forty or fifty years ago there came to the city of St. Louis a young Englishman of fortune, who invested well in a large tract of suburban real estate. Out of this have since grown and blossomed into beauty what is known as Tower Grove Park, now shaded with lofty elms which the young man himself planted, and a botanical garden which is unequaled in the United States and which is well worth a trip from either ocean to the great river valley to see. The originator of these splendid enterprises carried them on at his own expense, adding to their attractions year by year, and, as a crowning act of munificence, securing to the city of his adoption a title in fee to this magnificent property, to vest immediately upon his death. He is a man of large wealth and generous sympathies—a public benefactor worthy of all honor and enjoying a fame which is truly cosmopolitan—yet of simple habits and devoid of ostentation. He celebrated his eightieth birthday only a few days ago, and gives hale promise of another decade. His name is Henry Shaw.

The Whiskey Ring History.

[From the Indianapolis Sentinel.]

We are permitted to publish the following private letter from Gen. John McDonald, of St. Louis, to a gentleman in this city. The General says: "My book will be out the latter part of this month (August), and, among other features, will contain fac-simile letters from my former friends in Washington, which, at this time, will be very interesting reading to the God and morality party who are running Garfield." Gen. McDonald's book will be in demand everywhere throughout the country. The interior workings of the whisky ring have never been known. What connection Grant and his officials had with it will be looked for with the greatest solicitude. We are glad the facts are to be known. McDonald has them, has the documents—and they are to be given to the public, and thus the mills of the Gods grind on; and thus lurking crime and skulking criminals are brought to the surface. The fact that McDonald went to prison and wore the garb of a felon will avail the Republican managers nothing. They have got to face the documents. We are glad that McDonald has been spared to reveal the scoundrelism of the whisky ring. The revelations come in good time. The country demands facts—documentary facts—and Gen. John McDonald proposes to furnish them.

Not at All Surprising.

[From the Chicago News.]

The Chicago Tribune alleges that Hancock was the poorest kind of a soldier and general. But, then, during the rebellion, it accused President Lincoln of all sorts of follies, held Gen. Sherman up to public indignation as a crazy man, criticised Gen. Grant vindictively in the darkest hours of the Nation's peril, and abused unmercifully every commander who did not carry on the war according to the Tribune's plans.

Aiding the Campaign.

[From the New York Sun.]

Mr. James A. Garfield, of Ohio, is coming to New York this week to advise Marshall Jewell as to the plan of the campaign. If he wants to help along the Republican cause, he cannot possibly do better than to furnish the managers with the original draft of the brief which he swears he prepared for De Golyer & McClellan in 1873, in return for their check for $5,000.

Barnum's Oversight.

[From the Washington Post.]

Mr. P. T. Barnum must have forgotten the Hon. Omar D. Conger when he wrote the advertisement in which he claims that he has a rhinoceros that carries the largest horn ever seen in the United States. We cannot consent to see this statesman thus stripped of his sole mark of superiority.

A Conundrum.

[From the New York World.]

And, by the way, if the fact that Georgia is overwhelmingly Democratic proves that there is no "freedom" in that State, but only "stagnation and death," what are we to think of overwhelmingly Republican States like Vermont?

A Stand-Off.

[From the Atlanta Constitution.]

The esteemed Burlington Hawkeye is hereby sincely reminded that Iowa's 80,000 majority for Garfield will be somewhat offset by Georgia's 100,000 for Hancock. We trust there will be no hard feelings on that account.

Highly Inexplicable.

[From the Atlanta Constitution.]

A telephone war has broken out in Canada, though what they are fighting over must ever remain a mystery to those who have tested the inefficiency of the telephone system.

PUBLIC OPINION.

Love-Making on the Bridge.

ST. LOUIS, August 4, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

As a disgusted old bachelor, old enough at least to have some common sense, I would like to ask why the only decent promenade in St. Louis, the bridge, is to be made uninhabitable in the evening for everybody but callow fools of both sexes who imagine they are in love with each other. I have nothing specially mean in my composition that I know of. I am not of an envious, saturnine, melancholic disposition to chafe at the happiness of others; but I confess, Mr. Editor, that I feel like butting my head against an abutment when I notice the antics of some of these daft couples.

It was a cool evening yesterday, and one would think that the ardor of young blood would be somewhat less arduous, but it wasn't. I ran into one couple immediately after paying my nickel at the toll-gate. He was saying that his devotion to music had attuned him for the rapture he felt in listening to the melody of her voice. I shook that couple and strolled on and in the course of a ten minutes' walk I gathered the following observations: "Darling, when the flood of years has rolled in upon us, will you—" "My own heart's idol, you know that I—" "Of course the world is cold, Emma, and we must not look for sympathy—" "Charles, dearest, papa says that you—" "If we were married, love—" and so on, and so on in one long, syrupy, sticky, molassesy trail, the twenty or thirty conversations on that bridge continued. Most of the young men were bow-legged and crook-backed, all of the girls were freckled and stub-nosed, and yet that washy flow of sentiment poured on and I couldn't miss it. I fled from post to post, always to discover some new manifestation of the maiden all forlorn being entreated for osculation by the young men, figuratively speaking, all ragged and torn. Can't we have a protective tariff against this sort of traffic on the bridge? MISOGYNIST.

Street Car Etiquette.

ST. LOUIS, August 4, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In an answer to "Must They Stand?" of last night's edition, I would like to express the opinion of one of a good many gentlemen. Did a lady ever consider that men after working hard all day could possibly be tired? It is this that makes them partly ashamed of themselves. Besides it is a sight too often seen, of a gentleman giving up his seat without the least motion or word of thanks. It should be considered a favor deserving of some slight recognition. Again, a lady surely knew the car was filled when she entered; could she not wait five minutes for another car? If ladies considered this matter as they should they would not be so quick to form conclusions of men who really are gentlemen.

Yours, etc. (in public behalf), W. R. R.

Cui Bono?

ST. LOUIS, August 4, 1880.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

For whose benefit are the "coppers" now so plentifully scattered over the city? Will not some "Green Grocer" aid the public by ventilating with a copper's worth of peaches, apples or tomatoes? Otherwise must they all return whence they came? HUN.

SPORTING NOTES.

Promissory Notes and General Gossip—A New Sporting Resort.

Capt. Lew Clark, secretary of the St. Louis Trotting Club, does not leave for the East until Saturday next.

Special accommodations have been prepared for ladies at the Price-Lucas shooting match on Saturday.

Lovers of turf sports will be regaled on Saturday by two fine trots and a running race at the Jockey Club track.

Great sport is anticipated on next Sunday when the Reds and Browns cross bats at the Grand Avenue Park, using a lively ball. The score will be enormous.

H. W. Collender, of New York, the famous billiard man, and M. Benzinger, of Chicago, also a great billiardist, have been in the city for several days in conference with John W. McCullagh, Brunswick & Balke's agent, relative to a grand tournament to take place here this fall.

A SPORTSMAN'S PARADISE.

Mr. John W. Munson, secretary of the National American Kennel Club, has just returned from what he terms "a sportsman's paradise," called Hallock. The town is in Kittson county, Minnesota, named after Mr. Charles Hallock, for many years editor of the Forest and Stream and the author of several sporting works. It is situated about eighteen miles south of the Manitoba line. Mr. Hallock is making the town, his future summer home, looking forward to making of his name-sake the Sportsmen's Paradise of the North. The town is beautifully located on a branch of Two Rivers, a stream that winds tortuously through an artistically laid-out park, and in this park district residence lots are to be sold to persons who will make the town their summer resort. Already quite a number of lots have been taken, mostly by New Yorkers and Canadians. Several members of the Lotus Club, of New York, will locate lots this month, during their shooting and fishing season there. The town of Hallock is in the heart of a fine wheat country, and the farms are owned principally by wealthy men, but the attraction is for sportsmen and summer pleasure-seekers. It is in the heart of an abundant and primitive game region, and sportsmen this season may shoot in a hitherto unexplored field. Men and teams have already been engaged by Mr. Hallock and his friends for the accommodation of visiting sportsmen. A new hotel, to cost $12,000, is nearly completed. The town is located convenient to the game, and it is the intention of the founders that game shall be properly preserved. In a private letter to a gentleman of St. Louis, Mr. Hallock writes: "The game found here is elk, moose, caribou, red deer, an occasional black-tail, bear, wolves, foxes, coons, mustelidæ of various kinds, ducks, geese (breeding here in countless numbers), curlew, snipe, bitterns, woodcock, three kinds of grouse, plovers, hares, etc; and of fish we have bass, pike, pickerel, etc., etc. This bill of fare can be extended." "We lie in the trough made by the south branch of Two Rivers—the Tamarack River and Red River. The Tamarack River flows into and loses itself in Tamarack Swamp, which covers six square miles, and swarms with ducks, deer and bears. I can put my boat in the river at the railroad crossing, a few miles below town, and float down stream into the swamp." A St. Louis merchant, who spent several weeks in that country in 1875, says he never saw such an abundance and variety of game, and never experienced a more delightful climate. Two St. Louis gentlemen have already bought lots in the town, and expect to go up to locate there the latter part of August or early in September, and it is very probable that a party of sportsmen may be formed here to spend a month of shooting and fishing there this fall.

New Buildings.

N. Frederick is building a $2,800 dwelling on the south side of Gravois road, near McNair avenue.

G. Kunderman is building a kitchen on the east side of Eighth street, near Pestalozzi, at a cost of $150.

W. Britton is putting an addition to his house on Cass avenue, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets.

J. Wilthaber made application for a permit to build a $1,400 dwelling on the south side of Sidney, near Emma.

Penny & Gentles were issued a permit to build a two-story store on the southwest corner of Fifth street and Franklin avenue at a cost of $2,500.

Charles Bosse was granted a permit to-day to build a store and dwelling at a cost of $5,000, on the southeast corner of Exchange and West Sixteenth streets.

Mrs. C. Schroap, owner, was given permission to-day to build a store and dwelling at a cost of $4,000, on the south side of Laclede avenue, between Grand and Theresa.

W. L. and J. Hughes were granted permits to build three dwellings on the south side of Chouteau avenue, between Dolman and Second Carondelet avenue, at a cost of $5,700 each.

Stockholders' Liability.

Peter McLarney against Ernst H. Petering is a suit that had its origin in Randolph county. The plaintiff holds a judgment against the defunct Moberly Bank for $1,126 05 recovered in the Randolph Circuit Court, and he seeks to recover $800 from Petering on five unpaid-up shares which the latter holds.

REPUBLICANS IN COUNCIL.

The Meeting of Garfield and His Advisers in New York.

A Number of Prominent Leaders Present.

NEW YORK, August 5.—A number of leading Republicans are here to attend the conference. From 8 this morning General Garfield was besieged with visitors. On the table in Garfield's parlor was a magnificent floral tribute with the word "welcome" interwoven. Gen. Garfield shook hands with each visitor and had a pleasant word for all. He expressed himself feeling well, and recovered from the fatigue of yesterday's journey.

THE CONFERENCE.

Ex-Governor Jewell, chairman of the Republican National Committee, called the Republican Conference to order and presided. He made a brief address explaining the objects of the gathering and was followed by several speakers, including United States Senator John A. Logan and John Cessna, Chairman of the Pennsylvania State Committee.

ADDITIONAL FOREIGN NEWS.

England.

THE COMPENSATION BILL.

LONDON, August 5.—In the House of Commons to-day, in reply to the inquiry of Parnell, the Chief Secretary for Ireland said: "I deeply regret the rejection of the compensation bill; I do not think we can bring in another bill on that subject this session. The Government will protect officers and courts in their execution. I hope a plentiful harvest will alleviate the sufferings of the farmers. Members of all parties of both houses should use their influence in maintaining and assist the Government to maintain order in Ireland."

United States and Brazil Steamship Line.

WASHINGTON, August 5.—The Consul of the United States at Para, Brazil, informs the Department of State that a line of British steamers has recently been established between Bubya and the United States, and it is intended that every port between Bubya and Para shall be a stopping place. But no stopping will be made between Para and New York. At present there are only two steamers of 600 tons burden, but others will be added as business increases.

A Training Ship at Chicago.

CHICAGO, August 5.—The United States steamship Michigan is at Grand Haven, Mich., en route for Chicago. The Michigan, in addition to her regular patrol duty, is engaged in enlisting for a naval training ship. She visits Chicago for the purpose. A considerable number of Western boys have already enlisted, and as the material is first-class the Secretary is very anxious to secure as much more as possible.

CONCERNING THE CENSUS.

Salomon Is Mad and Sawyer Is Too Busy to Talk.

Mr. Salomon was found to-day rather sad about the way he was being treated. "I don't care," said Mr. Salamon, "what they say about the work, or my connection with it, but when they attack me personally and call me senseless, then something has got to be done about it. I am getting more sorry every day that I ever had anything to do with the work. Because I could not keep the census at the figures that the people would like to have it I have been repeatedly bully-ragged and abused as if I had committed the vilest action." Mr. Sawyer was busily working away, but had nothing to say. The carriers' lists are becoming so intricate that Mr. S. is sure that he will not be done now until the middle of next week. He says it is the meanest work he has ever done, and that anybody understanding it could not blame him for the delay.

An Affray Between Two Well-Known Citizens.

Maj. W. F. Melbourne appeared before Capt. Huebler to-day, being taken to the Third District Station by Officer Roach at the request of W. C. Hunt. Mr. Hunt and Maj. Melbourne had a hot dispute in which Mr. Hunt says Maj. Melbourne drew a revolver on him. At the station-house Maj. Melbourne had no revolver, and said that Mr. Hunt was persuaded into the belief by a motion he made when Mr. Hunt was about to assault him. Mr. Hunt said he did not attempt to assault him and that he is positive he saw the revolver. The facts will be ventilated before Judge Dennison to-morrow.

The Next General Manager.

It was rumored in railroad circles to-day that Mr. George E. Farrington, of Terre Haute, is to succeed Maj. John E. Simpson as general manager of the Vandalia line. Inquiry at the office of the Vandalia here developed the fact that the rumor was not official, but was supposed to be well founded. Mr. Farrington is at present secretary and general agent of the Vandalia Company. He lives in Terre Haute.

MONEY.

It has been a quiet day in financial circles, the banks doing little outside the regular routine. New York exchange is so dull that it is hardly quotable, no sales being reported. It is certainly ⅛ off. Nothing worthy of note in the local stock and bond market. New York was lower on stocks.

On 'Change.

MORNING BOARD.

Wheat—Irregular, weak at both opening and closing, but in the interim was strong and active, partaking much of the general nervous character of the market that has been noticeable for two weeks past. The range of fluctuations, however, has not been great, and nobody has been particularly injured or benefited by declines or advances. There seems to be a pretty well settled conviction that the price of cash is going to hover pretty close about 90c for some time to come. Exporters will pay that and buy freely, and they are now the practical masters of this market. Cash opened to-day at 91½c and closed at 91⅛c, with large sales. August opened at 90⅝, advanced to 91⅛ and closed lower at 91⅛; September 88⅝, advanced to 89⅜ and closed steady at opening price; October opened with 89¾ bid and closed with sales at 88⅞; year opened at 88¾ and closed at 88¾. No. 3 sold at 86¼, and No. 4 sold at 84¼, east side, and closed seller 84, east side, and 83 this side.

Corn—Dull and unchanged. Cash sold at 34⅛; August, 34½ bid and none offered; September, 34 5-16 bid and 34¼ asked; October sold at 34½; November, 33 3-8 bid and 34 asked; year, 32 bid and 32¼ asked; No. 2 white mixed cash sold at 35⅜ in Central; rejected white mixed, 35 bid and 35⅜ asked; rejected corn, 30¼ asked.

Oats—Stronger, but with light trading. Cash sold at 21½c for fresh; August sold at 21⅝c; September 21⅞c bid and 22¼c asked; October 22⅛c bid and 22⅜c asked; year 21½c bid and 21⅞c asked; rejected 21c bid and none offered.

Rye—Better. Cash sold at 61½c, and 65½c was bid for September; rejected 55c bid.

Provisions—Firm and steady, with prices unchanged. There is a good demand, and trading was fairly active. Cash pork sold at $15 25; on call it was not offered for less than $15 50. There were sales of dry salt shoulders at 4.80c, clear rib at 7.35c and long clear at 7.25c. Clear remains at 7.60c. Bacon shoulders were quoted at 5.65c, and clear rib at 8.25c. There was a sale of 25 casks of clear to be delivered before the first half of November at 9⅛c. Hams steady at 11¼@12⅛c.

AFTERNOON BOARD—2:15 P. M.

Wheat—Easy and unchanged. Cash 91⅛c bid, and 92c asked; August sold at 91c; September 88⅝c bid and 88⅞c asked; October 88 13-16c bid and 89c asked; year sold at 88⅝c.

Corn—Nominal and unchanged. Cash 34⅛c bid and 34½ asked; August 34 5-16; September 34¼ bid and 34⅜ asked; October sold at 34⅜; November 33⅜ bid and 33¾ asked; year 22⅛ bid and 22¼ asked.

Oats—Dead dull. Cash 21⅝ bid, and 22 asked; August 21⅝ bid, and offered at 21⅞; September 22 bid, and 22⅛ asked; October 22⅛ bid, and 22⅜ asked; year 21½ bid, and 21⅞ asked.

The Cotton Market.

Spots were steady at yesterday's advance, and there was a little livelier movement, sales footing up 219 bales. New York was quiet and firm and Liverpool steady.

CATTLE—Transfers only moderate, and mainly in grass Texans and Indians. Local butchers and interior shippers made fair purchases but paid low prices for these grades, as will be seen by the sales given below. The canners bought some grass Texans, and paid from $2 75 to $3 per 100 lbs in extremes. Common to fair mixed butchers' stuff and native cows, heifers, Southwest steers, etc. in fair supply and slow of disposal at medium prices. Eastern shippers were looking around, but did not show much life, as the reports from New York were not very flattering. Hence they were very cautious in their movements. Offerings of native shipping steers small, and mainly of fair grades, which brought from $4 20 to $4 45 ₩ 100 lbs. Stock and feeding steers in better demand. Milch cows and calves in fair supply and dull. Ruling quotations weak.

HOGS—There was considerable activity in the hog market this afternoon and the moderate supply soon changed hands and brought the prices prevailing yesterday. Yorkers brought from $4 65@4 70; mixed packing $4 50@4 80; butcher hogs were scarce and wanted at $4 65@5; one fancy lot sold early this morning at $5 10 per 100 lbs. Good and heavy lard hogs in demand.

SHEEP—Fair to good mutton grades in active demand on local and shipping account, while the supply was scant and barely enough to make a market. Values steady:

Quote choice to extra $3 75 to $4; fair to good $3 25 to $3 75; medium to fair $3 to $3 25. Stock sheep $2 50@2 75. Scabby natives and Texas stockers not wanted. Lambs $1 50 to $2 per head.

State of Missouri, City of St. Louis, ss.
In the Circuit Court City of St. Louis. June Term, 1880.
Friday, June 18th, 1880.
Martha Slater
vs.
George Slater.

It appearing from the petition, duly verified by affidavit of the plaintiff herein, that the defendant has absented himself from his usual place of abode so that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him, therefore, on motion of said plaintiff, by attorney, it is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and defendant, on the grounds that defendant has without a reasonable cause absented himself from plaintiff for the space of one year prior to the filing of this petition, and has been addicted to habitual drunkenness for the space of one year, and for an order that plaintiff may be granted the custody and control of her minor children.

And unless he appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of October next, and, on or before the third day thereof, answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

And it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published according to law in the St. Louis POST-DISPATCH, a newspaper printed and published in the city of St. Louis.

The State of Missouri at the relation and to the use of Myer A. Rosenblatt, collector of the city of St. Louis, in the State of Missouri, vs.
Jane B. Tompkins.
[No. 1323.]

Now at this day comes Charles H. Chapin, Esq., plaintiff's attorney, and files his affidavit, whereby it appears to the court that said Jane B. Tompkins, defendant herein, is a non-resident of the State of Missouri. It is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against her, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a judgment in rem for the sum of forty-three dollars and sixty-eight cents, interest and costs against the following described real estate, situate, lying and being in the city of St. Louis, to-wit:

Lots Nos. 26 and 27, block 5, Adams' addition to the city of St. Louis, city block No. 1724, said lot No. 26 fronting 25 feet on Adams street by a depth of 114 9-12 feet, and said lot No. 27 fronting 50 8-12 feet on Adams street by 117 6-12 feet.

Being for back taxes due and unpaid on said real estate for the year 1877.

And unless she appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of October next, and on or before the third day thereof answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against her as confessed.

Arnes B. Teichman
vs.
Carl Teichman.

It appearing from the affidavit this day filed herein that defendant Carl Teichman is a non-resident of the State of Missouri and that the ordinary process of law cannot be served upon him, on motion of plaintiff, by attorney, it is ordered that said defendant be notified that a civil action has been commenced against him, the object and general nature of which is to obtain a decree of divorce from the bonds of matrimony existing between plaintiff and defendant, on the ground that defendant, wholly disregarding his duties as the husband of plaintiff, was guilty of such cruel and barbarous treatment of the plaintiff as to endanger the life of plaintiff, and did compel by his said treatment to the plaintiff to leave him, and for the restoration of her maiden name, Agnes Borstel.

And unless he appear at the term of this court to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the first Monday of October next, and, on or before the third day thereof, answer the plaintiff's petition, the same will be taken against him as confessed.

In the Probate Court for the City of St. Louis, June Term, 1880.
Saturday, July 10, A. D. 1880.
Estate of Edward Daly.

Now, at this day, comes Martrom D. Lewis, Public Administrator, having charge of the estate of Edward Daly, deceased, and presents to the court his petition praying for an order for the sale of so much of the real estate of said deceased as will pay and satisfy the remaining debts due by said estate, and yet unpaid for want of sufficient assets, accompanied by the accounts, lists and inventories required by law in such case, on examination whereof it is ordered that all persons interested in the estate of said deceased be notified that application, as aforesaid, has been made, and that unless the contrary be shown on or before the first day of the next term of this court, to be begun and held at the city of St. Louis, within and for the city of St. Louis, on the second Monday of September next, an order will be made for the sale of the whole or so much of the real estate of said deceased as will be sufficient for the payment of said debts; and it is further ordered that a copy hereof be published in some newspaper printed in the city of St Louis aforesaid, for four weeks before the next term of this court.

A true copy from the record.
Witness my hand and the seal of the Probate Court of the City of St. Louis, hereto affixed, this 14th day of July, 1880.
{SEAL} W. E. WAGNER, Clerk. 1V

ADMINISTRATOR'S SALE OF PERSONALTY.—Under order of Probate Court of the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, I will on Thursday, August 5, 1880, about 12 o'clock, at the east front door of the Court-house in the city of St. Louis, sell as administrator of the estate of Wesley Fallon, deceased, for cash, the following accounts, notes, stocks and judgments belonging to said estate: One share Agricultural and Mechanical Association of St. Louis, 50 shares Southwestern Book and Publishing Company, 3 notes made by Robert Fallon for $420 70, $458 90 and $479 10, respectively; note, P. Wiles & Son, $100; note, P. P. Child, $101 66; note, Mary L. Taylor, $301 65; note, P. E. Bland, $291; note, D. Leach, $30; note, S. W. Dunn, $131 36; note, J. S. Porter, $260; note, G. E. Finch, $225; judgments against L. P. Ehrman, $163 90; C. G. McHatton, $65 50; R. McO'Blennis, $28 50; N. J. Colman, $87 50; W. S. Golding, $46 00; accounts against Western Mutual Fire and Marine Insurance Company, $2,583 05, and $2,438 25. Also about five hundred dollars in amount of small accounts against different persons, and all accounts, notes, judgments and stocks remaining in my hands as administrator of said estate, for the benefit thereof.
GEORGE DENISON,
Administrator of estate of Wesley Fallon, deceased.

Trustees' Sales.

TRUSTEES' SALE—Whereas, Augustus W. Alexander, and Mary P., his wife, by their deed of trust dated May 7, 1874, and recorded in the Recorder's Office of St. Louis County, State of Missouri, in book 496, at page 363, conveyed to the undersigned the following described real estate, lying and being situated in the township of Meramec, county of St. Louis, and State of Missouri, and more particularly described as being lots numbers eight (8) and nine (9) of Hamilton Creek Tract as the same is of record in the office of Recorder of Deeds of said county in plat book number three (3), page 85, and being the same land described in a deed of William T. Gay to said Alexander and recorded in said Recorder's office in book 360, page 422, and containing eighty-six (86) acres more or less; which conveyance was made in trust to secure the payment of certain notes specified in said deed. Now, under the provisions of said deed, the undersigned will offer said property for sale, at public auction, for cash, to the highest bidder, at the eastern front door of the Court-house, in the city of St. Louis, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m.
SATURDAY, AUGUST 7TH, 1880,
for the purposes of said trust.
ALFRED CARR.
RUFUS A LEWIS.
St. Louis, July 14, 1880. 55Q

TRUSTEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE.—Whereas, Charles Kortrecht and Augusta, his wife, by their certain deed of trust dated the 15th day of April, 1874, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the then county (now city) of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book number 496, page 318, conveyed unto one Clemens Kelper, as trustee, the following described real estate, situate, lying and being in the then county (now city) of St. Louis, and State of Missouri, to-wit: Being all of lots number fifteen and sixteen (Nos. 15 and 16) of P. R. Kenrick's subdivision of lots 45 and 86, Carondelet commons, south of River Des Peres, known as Garden Tract, bounded north by an avenue forty feet wide, on the west by the River Des Peres, on the south by lot No. 17, and on the east by an avenue or road forty feet wide, in all about fifteen acres; which conveyance was made to the said Clemens Kelper, as trustee, to secure the payment of certain notes in said deed of trust described.

And whereas the said Clemens Kelper having departed this life, and there having been a default in the payment of said note, due April 15, 1876, mentioned in said deed of trust, the Circuit Court, city of St. Louis, did, by an order made and entered of record, appoint the undersigned trustee to execute said deed of trust in lieu and place of said original trustee and with all the power and authority in said deed of trust vested in said original trustee.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of one of the notes secured by said deed of trust, and the said Charles Kortrecht has been dead more than nine months.

And whereas heretofore on the first day of April, 1880, the undersigned trustee gave notice of his intention to execute the said trust, but by inadvertence and mistake the day of sale mentioned in said notice was mentioned on Saturday, the 24th day of April, 1879, instead of 1880, as it should have been; and although a sale of said premises was made on April 24, 1880, under such notice, the validity thereof under said notice may be questioned.

Now, in order to make a good and valid sale, and to execute said trust according to law, and in pursuance of said deed of trust and under authority of said order of said Circuit Court and at the request of the legal holder of said note remaining unpaid, the undersigned trustee, so appointed as aforesaid, will offer the property above described for sale [save and excepting, however, so much thereof as is included in lots numbered one (1), two (2) and three (3) in block number eleven (11), and lots numbered nine (9), six (6), eight (8) and ten (10) of block number ten (10), of Waddell's addition No. 2 to South St. Louis, as the same appears on record in the Recorder's Office of the city of St. Louis, in plat book No. 10, pages 22 and 23, said lots so excepted from this sale having been released of the lien of said deed of trust by a certain deed of release recorded in said Recorder's Office, in book No 545, page 224], at public vendue to the highest bidder, at the Court-house door (eastern door) in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, for cash, between the hours 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of
TUESDAY, THE 10TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1880,

TRUSTEE'S SALE—Whereas, Rudolph Staenz and Margaret, his wife, by their certain deed of trust dated the 23d day of August, 1877, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, Missouri, in book 576, page 184, conveyed to the undersigned trustee the following described leasehold estate, situate, lying and being in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, to-wit: The unexpired term of lease of all that lot of ground, together with the buildings and improvements erected thereon, in the St. Louis Commons, in the city of St. Louis, Missouri, lying in block number sixty-three of said commons, commencing at a point on the north line of President street, a street running eastwardly and westwardly through said block, 220 feet eastwardly from the western line of said block, thence northwardly and parallel to the western line of said block 150 feet, more or less, to an alley twenty feet wide, thence eastwardly along the south line of said alley 125 feet, thence southwardly and parallel to the western line of said block 150 feet, more or less, to President street, and thence westwardly along the north line of President street 125 feet to the place of beginning. It being the same leasehold estate acquired of Elihue H. Shepard by indenture of lease dated April 1, 1858, and recorded in the Recorder's office of the city of St. Louis, in book 253, page 188. Which said conveyance was made in trust to secure to J. Kiburz the payment of three promissory notes in said deed described, and whereas default has been made in the payment of the first of said notes, now, therefore, public notice is hereby given, that at the request of the holder of said note, and in pursuance of the provisions of said deed, I will, on THURSDAY, THE 26TH OF AUGUST, 1880, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m. and 4 o'clock p. m. of said day, at the eastern front door of the Court-house, in said city of St. Louis, proceed to sell the property above described, at public auction, to the highest bidder, for cash, to satisfy said note and expenses of executing this trust.

TRUSTEE'S SALE.—Whereas The City University a corporation created and established by an act of the Legislature of the State of Missouri, by deed of trust dated the first day of May eighteen hundred and seventy-five, and recorded in the office of the Recorder of Deeds for the county (now city) of St. Louis, State of Missouri, in book 520, page 544, conveyed to the undersigned trustee, to secure the payment of certain promissory notes in said deed described, the following described lot of ground, situated in block number 507, of said city of St. Louis, and thus particularly described: Beginning at the northeast corner of Sixteenth and Pine streets, and running thence north along the east line of Sixteenth street one hundred and nine feet one inch, to an alley fifteen feet wide, running east and west through the center of said block, thence east along the south line of said alley, eighty-three feet, to a lot now or formerly of Joseph M. Ghio; thence south and parallel to Sixteenth street, one hundred and nine feet one inch, to the north line of Pine street; thence west along the north line of Pine street eighty-three feet to the east line of Sixteenth street, the point of beginning. And being bounded north by said alley, east by a line 83 feet east of the east line of Sixteenth street, south by Pine street, and west by Sixteenth street, together with the "City University" building erected thereon, and all appertaining and belonging thereto.

And whereas default has been made in the payment of the principal note, as well as a part of one of the interest notes in said deed of trust described. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that the undersigned trustee, at the request of the legal holder of said principal note, as well as said unpaid interest note, by virtue of the authority of said deed of trust, and in pursuance of the provisions thereof, will, on WEDNESDAY, THE 25TH DAY OF AUGUST, 1880, between the hours of 10 o'clock a. m., and 5 o'clock p. m. of that day, proceed to sell the property above described, at public vendue, to the highest bidder, for cash, at the east front door of the Court-house, in the city of St. Louis, State of Missouri, to satisfy said debt and the expenses of executing this trust.

People Often Remark
That they had no idea that offices were established in the leading cities of the county for the reception of advertisements and reading notices for the newspapers at other places. The ability to learn the cost for an advertisement and all about the papers in far off cities surprises them, and not infrequently they offer to pay for the information obtained, to which our reply is that our services are paid by the publishers of the papers and that the advertiser is charged no more than he would have to pay if he called at the office of the paper in which he desired to advertise. We trust hereafter most of St. Louis will bear these facts in mind, and when they have advertisements to place in the papers give us a call, as we are the only firm in this city engaged in this business.

No Refuge for Him.
A mulatto, thirteen years old, tall for his age, is wanted by Mrs. John F. Watson, of 3022 Easton avenue. His name is John Black, and until lately he was at the House of Refuge. By permission of the Mayor, Mrs. Watson took him from that institution and put him to work in her house. He failed to suit her, and she got him another place. With this, however, he was not satisfied, and last evening he returned to Mrs. Watson's. That lady informed him of her intention to recommit him to the House of Refuge, whereupon he abruptly left the house and has not been seen since.

First District Police Court.
Charles Graves, colored, attempted to rob John L. Lewis in a lumber yard near the corner of Poplar street and the levee, was caught by a private watchman, found guilty of disturbing the peace and fined $100. George Klein came from Kansas, where he said he had been harvesting. He carried a revolver concealed and, therefore, was charged $25. Frank Kelley, for loitering on a street corner, was mulcted $5. John Fallon paid $5 for disturbing the peace. Mary Shaughnessy and Thomas Murray, plain drunks, were each assessed $5.

FRESH AIR MISSION.

Poor People's Picnic Down the River To-Day.

Scenes and Incidents of the Weekly Trip —Arrangements for Tickets, Etc.

The sixth excursion of the Fresh Air Mission started down the river this morning. The committee in charge have been looking around for a boat, and after a week's search, they concluded to rebire the E. W. Cole for this trip. The boat owners insisted on an advance in price, and the trips now cost $145 each, an advance of $30. The managers will have all long excursions hereafter, as they say that the children enjoy the ride more when they do not get too much time on land, where the heat is nearly as oppressive as at home. The trip to-day was to Indian Cave, twenty-three miles down the river. The number of excursionists this morning was comparatively small, owing principally to the cold weather of the last few days, and also to the fact that the tickets were taken up on the last trip and many persons have not secured the new ones. Dr. Kingsley was out at the end of the gang-plank as usual, busily superintending the matter of embarking. The people came in rather slowly and late, as if it took them some time to make up their minds to go. One little fellow about six years of age created quite a scene at the boat. He tripped gaily enough down the levee, but when he came to the plank he refused to go on board. He cried loudly, and vociferated that he was afraid of the boat. Persuasion and threats availed nothing, and an attempt to carry him resulted in a perfect din of shouting. Finally, he seemed to reason the thing out to suit himself, and was led quietly on board.

A LITTLE URCHIN,
minus one leg, tripped over the declivity without hat or coat. He petitioned Dr. Kingsley very earnestly for a ticket, was given one, and off he went, returning soon after with his hat and coat, the happiest boy on the boat. There were several adults on board to-day—cases in which fresh air might alleviate suffering. One poor man, a living skeleton, came down to the boat in a wagon and had to be helped, almost carried, in. The ladies gathered around him, and some one brought him a cup of fresh milk, which he drank greedily. A cot was procured and he lay down, as much at ease as it was possible to make him or as it is possible for a man so near his death to be. One of the most indefatigable workers to-day was Mrs. Ware, the secretary of the charity. As early as 8 o'clock she put in an appearance, and from that time until the start she was busy every moment. A new system was adopted in distributing the refreshments. As each person stepped on board the boat, a ticket was handed to them calling for one pint of tea or coffee, according to the individual choice. Tin cups have been provided on the boat in order to prevent the confusion hitherto arising. Most of the excursionists had got into the habit of bringing half-gallon buckets and wanting them filled. Others would want their share in bottles which it would take ten minutes and an experienced bar-keeper to fill. To-day the coffee will be distributed at one end of the boat, the tea at another, and thus the usual rush will be partly done away with. Assisting Mrs. Ware, and doing all that was to be done, was Mrs. J. H. Barnard, whose labors in the direction of charity are known and appreciated by every one connected with the Mission. She had with her to-day the juvenile lieutenants, Masters Harry Learned and Freddie Chamberlain, who came to assist in the work. Miss Christian and Miss Noyes made their first visit to-day, but were soon as busy doing good as those who had made all the trips.

THE ARRANGEMENTS ON BOARD
were even better than before. Some large water-coolers, donated by Mr. Brown, were placed in convenient spots, and were a great improvement over the old water barrels into which every body dipped and into which younger children were often in danger of falling. Drs. Kingsley, Hawley and Vaughn were in charge of the excursion. Mr. Nelson and Col. Carpenter were on hand, but neither of them had the time to make the trip. Huse, Loomis & Co. donated 1,180 pounds of ice to the excursion's use and a large quantity of milk was also taken on board. Everything has been provided for the comfort of the excursionists, and the trip, though not largely attended, bids fair to be one of the most pleasant of the season. The boat pulled out at 9:50 a. m. and will run down to Union Cave. A landing will be made then and the usual couple of hours spent in rollicking upon land. The return will be made about 5:30 p. m. The next trip will be on this day week from the foot of Cherry street. Mrs. Ware, the secretary of the Mission, requests it stated that any physician who wishes tickets for distribution can get them by applying to her at her residence, 2923 Washington avenue. She also wants the people to understand that they can not get the tickets from her, but must get them through the physicians or dispensaries with which they are left. Tickets can be procured at the dispensary corner of Tenth and Carr streets. Mrs. Ware is anxious that the physicians should co-operate with her in the distribution of tickets, as they have the best opportunity of reaching those for whom the trips were planned and intended.

KRING'S ARMY.

The Occupants of Murderers' Row Organized a la Militaire.

Clevis Hardin, who killed another negro named Prince Ferdinand last Monday, was committed to jail yesterday evening. The twelve other occupants of murderers' row extended to him the hand of fellowship and welcomed him to their quarters. Probably he did not enjoy their company, for this morning he held aloof from them. However, they seemed to care very little; some laughed; others remarked that he would not be so proud after awhile. Kring, the murderer of his inamorata, Mrs. Dora Broemser, advised Hardin to make friends of the guards and obey all the rules. Hardin did not reply, but turned on his heel and abruptly left. "Never mind," said the alleged maniac; "he'll be willing to carry water for my little army some day." Kring did not boast; he really is the captain of the red-handed prisoners. Others, such as Heuman, who killed his wife and babe and cut his brother-in-law, all in two minutes; or Baber, who sent to their graves his mistress and her mother, may have committed more revolting crimes, and Gordon or Collins may be braver, but all seem to recognize Kring's right to the leadership. He is more intelligent than any other and has been in jail longer, having been committed on January 11, 1875. The fact that the woman-murderers think themselves superior to the others is noticeable. Maybe it is because they fancy a glamour of romance has been spread about their crimes. Kring does; he refers to it frequently. He is also a sort of legal adviser to the others. He has some knowledge of law, gained during his five years' imprisonment. He delights in technicalities and has many legal quibblings with the chief guards. Kring's aid is Joseph N. Kotovsky, also a woman-killer. He is young, under twenty-seven, and has a cunning expression on his countenance. The list of the army as kept by Capt. Kring is as follows:

REGULARS.
Lieut. Kotovsky, killed his sweetheart.
Sergt. Thaddeus Baber, killed Mrs. Barbara Schuendler and her daughter, his mistress.
Conrad Heuman, killed his wife and child and tried to kill his brother-in-law.
Matt Lewis, colored, killed his wife.
Wm. Ward, colored, killed Annie Lewis, who was his mistress and Matt Lewis' daughter.
Wm. Henry Erb, killed his wife.
James Banks, colored, killed his wife.
Wm. McQueen (Irish tramp), killed his wife.

CADETS.
James Gordon, Lieutenant, killed Troxler.
James Collins, killed Larry Powers.
Cocksdoodle John Peyton, colored, killed Snake Jim.

AWKWARD SQUAD.
Clevis Hardin, killed Prince Ferdinand.

Continuing the roster, Capt. Kring remarks that he is liable to lose three regulars, Ward, Lewis and Erb, and one cadet, John Peyton, who are sentenced to be hanged next month. He hopes, however, that the Court of Appeals will grant their pleas. "It is too warm to have a good hanging," he said apologetically. Kring intends to make a weekly report to Jailer Ryan. He has already begun it. He says he finds the prison discipline good, the guards respectable, and everything given as food of the best quality. He would like though to have the scaffold removed from the Four Courts premises and erected some distance away. "It is a horrid structure," he says, "standing bleak and black in the opalline clearness of the summer air. Let it be removed or let the view of it be prevented. The sight of it is bad for the nerves." He has not completed the report. If he should it will be published in full. Meanwhile he is studying philosophy and physiognomy.

ABOUT TOWN.

AS this is police pay-day ye peeler seemeth happy.

OFFICER J. J. SLATTERY proposes to visit the Lakes during the next two weeks.

ABOUT $25 damage was yesterday, done to the wagon of a Mr. Smith, who lives at 3017 Gratiot, by a frightened horse.

OFFICER SAPPINGTON reports that on yesterday he killed a mad dog belonging to Mrs. Dumphy, of 2918 Papin Street.

NOICE JOHNSON, a colored girl, died in the rear of 1013 North Eighth street early this morning without medical attendance. The Coroner held an inquest and pronounced death the result of natural causes.

THE St. Louis Cotton Compress Company is one of the most prosperous institutions of the city. It has only been a year since it increased its capital stock to $750,000, and now its stockholders are called together to vote on a proposition to increase it to $1,000,000.

THE LAST OF EARTH.

Return of St. Louisans from the Obsequies of Major Simpson.

The St. Louis gentlemen who accompanied the remains of the late Major John E. Simpson to their last resting place at Michigan City, Indiana, returned this morning. Mr. Wesley Austin, of the Lindell Hotel, gave a description of the trip to a POST-DISPATCH reporter. The party left St. Louis at 7 o'clock on Tuesday evening. At Effingham quite a number of railroad officials boarded the train, and at Chicago a still larger delegation joined the cortege. At 9 a. m. the party left Chicago by special train, arriving at Michigan City at 11 o'clock. The casket was taken direct from the depot to the church, where the funeral services were performed, and then followed by the most imposing cortege that Michigan City has ever witnessed. The solemn march to the cemetery was taken and all that is mortal of John E. Simpson was laid in the grave by the side of the only child, that lived but to blossom and die. Mrs. Simpson will remain with her parents at Michigan City for eight or ten days, when she will return to St. Louis to close up the business affairs of her husband, after which she will permanently locate at the home of her youth. Mr. Austin says that when he left the lady she was in a composed condition that gave her friends much satisfaction.

CITY PERSONALS.

Mr. Wm. Steigers will return from the seashore about September 1.

John Wahl, the well-known commission merchant, sold the first car of lead ever shipped from the Joplin mining region.

J. Gordon Posey, who is practicing law in New Mexico, writes to friends in St. Louis that his success has been most flattering.

John D. McCarty, the popular proprietor of the hotel founded by his well-known father at Jefferson City, is in St. Louis on his annual vacation.

Billy Hawk, the flour man, while out in the country the other day on a business trip, bought a comely-looking horse for $80 from a farmer. It turns out to be a very fast animal, making 2:35 with perfect ease. He thinks he has struck a bonanza.

One of the youthful and beardless members of the Holland Domino Club, which meets every night at Mack's drug store on Lafayette avenue, has serious intentions of committing matrimony as soon as the weather gets cooler, and the club is thrown into convulsions by the prospect of his resignation.

The boys say that Col. Armstrong has been fired with an ambition to outdo Tanner. He has made up his mind not to let go of a single expletive for forty days, beginning at 9:30 this morning. The Colonel prepared for this fearful ordeal by swearing steadily from eight to half-past nine. His pitiable condition at the end of the forty days can only be imagined by those who know him.

Militia Notes.

The armory of the National Guard is being repainted and generally renovated.

The Bain Zouaves, Capt. Robt. E. Bain, at a meeting held last evening, concluded to disband. Amateur soldiering is more or less expensive.

The National Guard Regiment has accepted the invitation to participate in the parade of the Knights of Pythias, on August 24, on the occasion of the Grand Conclave of the World of the Order.

Frank McCoy, Captain of Company K, of the National Guards, returned from Washington, D. C., yesterday, where on the 27th of July he secured at the hands of the President appointment as a Second Lieutenant in the regular army. Capt. McCoy is under orders to report to Fort Leavenworth on September 1st, for civil examination in "reading, 'riting and 'rithmetic."

Second District Police Court.

Twenty prisoners occupied the dock of this court to-day—Frankie Brown, an inmate, was fined $10. For disturbing the peace the following judgments were given: Maria Flynn $10, Ed and Beckie Johnson $5 each, Jos. Redemeyer $25 and Amelia Craig costs. Cases against J. E. Byrne, Kate McCore, Chas. Bray and Herman Craig were nolle pros'ed. Henry Crosby was fined $10 for carrying a razor. Chas. Anderson was given $15 for trespassing. D. Lincoln was assessed costs for obstructing the highway. James Riley was fined $15 by default. Chas. Kratz forfeited his bond. Five cases were continued.

A Fine Entertainment.

The St. Louis Socialer Saengerchor gave a very successful concert last evening at Schnaider's Garden. The garden was comfortably filled, and the programme was excellent. The Saengerchor was under the direction of Prof. A. Willbartitz, and the orchestra was in charge of Prof. L. Mayer. The most noteworthy performance of the evening was the baritone solo by Mr. Arthur Caroli, assisted by the chorus and orchestra.

New Suits—The Fallon Sale—Legal Notes.

Probate Court.

Very little was done in the Probate Court to-day. Letters of administration were granted on the estate of Gerhard Reemts and of the firm of G. & H. Reemts. Herman Reemts was the executor in both cases.

A Heavy Tax Sale.

To-morrow at noon at the east front door of the Court-house Sheriff Finn will sell the largest amount of real estate ever sold in Missouri for unpaid taxes. The property belongs to some forty different people and is worth many times the amount of the taxes for which it is to be sold. The owners are Lucinda Alexander, Michael Bourgon, Thomas Bfown, Oscar W. Bleek, John Clark, L. F. Chartrand, Caroline J. Cozzens, James Cramer, Willard G. Dickman, John Duprez, Henry Foelsing, Susan H. Floyd, Ann Graham, Fred. Grausner, Samuel F. Heffner, Catherine Harney, S. J. Holthaus, John Hade, John R. Kelley, John Lady, W. Kreiter, Fred Lenzauer, Charlotte Lal, Virginia A. Miller, Werner Meyer, Appdovia Meyer, William A. Morris, David O'Connell, Ursula Ouray, Peshtigo Company, John Pfeiffer, David Powers, Krum, Chas. Charge, Richard R. Southard, Macklot Thompson, James P. Withrows, Jackson Walton.

The Fallon Estate.

The uncollected assets of the Wesley Fallon estate were offered for sale at the east front of the Court-house this morning. They consisted of accounts and bills against a great many persons, but not to any great amount. The sale was lively, the bidding brisk and the sums realized more than was expected.

POLITICAL NOTES.

Movements of the Ward Clubs and Gossip Caught on the Fly.

The Hancock Veterans meet in the Laclede parlors to-morrow evening.

The First Ward Invincible Democratic Club will meet at 23 South Sixth street.

Great satisfaction was experienced this morning among the politicians who haunt the hotels at the success of Gen. John B. Clark, who was yesterday renominated for Congress on the first ballot in the Eleventh District.

Preparations are being made to make the Democratic rally in the Eighteenth Ward, at O'Connell's Hall on Saturday night, a big affair. All the Hancock Clubs of the city have been invited to attend in organization.

The Twelfth Ward Democratic Hancock and English Guards will hold a meeting at Byron Hall to-morrow evening, 2205 O'Fallon street, to ratify the nomination of R. Graham Frost. The swinging to the breeze of a new and beautiful flag will be a feature of the occasion.

The rally of the Democracy on Vinegar Hill last evening was the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of the party held since the monster ratification at the Court-house. Mr. W. F. Causey, the orator of the evening, distinguished himself in his effort. Mr. Causey is one of the most effective speakers on the stump.

A Hancock and English Club was organized last evening in the Fifteenth Ward at Hussman's Hall, corner of Chouteau avenue and High street. R. N. Leonori was elected president; E. H. Tobias, vice-president, James M. Reilly, secretary. Speeches were made by Col. J. R. Claiborne, J. McGaffy and Wm. H. Smallwood. The roll was signed by sixty members.

It is a mistake to suppose that the Democratic Central Committee will attempt to straighten out the muddle in the Eighth Congressional District at their meeting on Saturday. They are called to perfect their organization by electing a Secretary, and W. H. Mayo or J. H. Hawley will be the man. The committee may have occasion to pass upon the question of the constitutional eligibility of the candidate for Secretary of State which has been raised by some sore and interested parties.

Henry Newman, of Randolph county, is in the city, and his headquarters are at the Laclede. Mr. Newman is not now a member of the State Central Committee. Mr. Newman was much chagrined by the success of Charley Mansur at the Congressional Convention held at Brunswick yesterday. Randolph and Chariton counties voted solidly for Dockery, of Daviess county. Congressman Rothwell refused to allow his name to go before the convention, and Dick Musser drew out of the race last week. The Republicans will put up Mullen, of Lynn, and attempt to form a fusion with the Greenbackers which, if successful, will make the district doubtful.

IN EAST LOUIS.

A Democratic caucus was held in East St. Louis to-day at which a number of prominent Democrats of the Seventeenth Congressional District of Illinois were present. Among others were: Hon. W. R. Morrison, of Waterloo; J. W. Coppinger, of Alton; A. H. Gambrell, of Alton; B. E. Hoffman, of Edwardsville; A. S. Wilderman, of Belleville; G. E. Bayle, of Alton; Ben R. Hite and W. A. Garesche, of Collinsville; Henry O. Billings and Col. Burbidge, of Alton; McClure, of Carlinville; D. B. Gilham, chairman of the State Central Committee, of Alton, John B. Bowman, P. Crotty, G. D. Green and Mike Walsh, of East St. Louis. The object of the caucus was to make arrangement for meetings and speakers and arrange time and place.

Court of Criminal Correction.

Ed. J. Phillips, assault and battery on Robert Atwell; dismissed for want of prosecution.

Thomas McNeary, obstructing the street by erecting a fence at the Compton avenue base ball park, through which a street is being cut; appealed from the Police Court, where he was fined $100 and the costs; judgment affirmed in default of appearance.

John H. Hickman, making an excavation in a public alley without permission of the Street Commissioner, appealed from the Police Court where he had been fined $100 and costs; judgment affirmed in default of appearance.

Warrants were issued in the following named cases: William Laughlin and Patrick Brooker, robbing Edward Cassidy of seventy-five cents; Frank Miller, stealing $40 from John Poble, of 624 Chouteau avenue; Peter, Michael and Martin Couley, beating Martin Baker, and Louise Pranzer, beating Randel Short, an infant.

East St. Louis.

Mr. Chas. Slattery, of the Island, gave bond in a vehicle license case to-day.

Albert Gage, who was locked up for disturbing the peace, was released this morning.

Frank Davis, alias Tom Barnes, was released to-day. He was locked up for several days for carrying concealed weapons.

Dan Mickie and William Barber were arrested on supicion this morning and given one hour to get outside of the corporate limits of East St. Louis.

While some drovers were putting cattle aboard the ferryboat East St. Louis this morning a Texas steer swam out into the river, and after enjoying the bath swam in to shore again.

Ah Lee, the Chinaman arrested yesterday for stealing $50 from a Cincinnati man on the I. & St. L. train, is still locked up at the station-house. His trunk was secured and the following articles found in it: Ten white shirts, three vests, ten undershirts, bedding, half-dozen sleeve buttons, a gold thimble and several pairs of overalls and blouses.

A RUPTURE OF 30 YEARS' STANDING CURED.

From Mr. Mathew Kern:
I was ruptured thirty years. After being tortured by wearing trusses, my rupture became so large that I could not get a truss that could keep it back. About three months ago I applied to the Vienna Institute for the Cure of Hernia, 1113 Washington avenue, this city and received their treatment. Notwithstanding my advanced age (64 years), I was completely cured in three months, without loss of time or pain. MATHEW KERN, 1216 E Bott avenue.

Another Case
I was treated at the Vienna Institute for a rupture of five years' standing, and was completely cured in two months. The treatment did not interfere with my occupation, and gave no pain.
ROBT. G. A. MEIER, 308 N. Fifth st.,
Residence, 1107 Chouteau ave.

Being aware that hernia (rupture) has heretofore been regarded as incurable, we publish the above in support of the fact, that we can and do cure the worst cases of reducible hernia without surgical operation or pain.
The Vienna Institute for the Cure of Hernia is permanently located at 1113 Washington avenue, this city, where the ruptured may obtain personal relief.
